Carmel's character is losing out to economics

By NANCY HILLS

"Much of Carmel's charm is undoubtedly due to its homes. Although there are a few imposing castle-like mansions of stone and stucco down near the dazzling crescent of beach, most of the houses look as if they had grown into their surroundings as naturally as the pine. Little low redwood cottages snuggle in among the silver green trunks of oaks, they hide back of masses of wild lilac, or peep out over the tops of quaint, moss-flecked wooden palings."

— Daisy F. Bostick and Dorothea Castelhun in their 1925 book Carmel at Work and Play.

FEW DESCRIPTIONS of Carmel's much-touted village atmosphere and charm fail to mention the "Carmel cottages" that dot the landscape and set the residential district apart from every other affluent California coastline community.

Usually, the fight for Carmel's uniqueness is focused on the commercial district, where tourists and their needs and tastes provide residents with endless hours of discussion.

That conflict, as old as the city of Carmel itself, may have diverted attention away from the residential district, where current trends could engender a much more permanent and substantive change to the city.

What Carmel's early chroniclers Bostick and Castelhun would say about the present tendency to tear down those cottages and erect larger, more generic homes (many of them built for financial speculation), can only be left to the imagination.

What the city council will say will be a topic of discussion at a study session scheduled for 4 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 27 in Carmel City Council Chambers. City staff will present a slide show and statistics to illustrate the changes in the residential character of the town.

"I'm perceiving that a lot of neighborhoods are beginning to change drastically in their look," said Councilmember Ken White, who along with Councilmember James Wright, had requested the council's R-1 study session.

'The residences in Carmel have become a commodity rather than a home.'

— Fred Keeble

— Planning commissioner

"There has been a lot of concern and comment about R-1 development standards lately," Wright said. "After the study session, I hope we will have little more appreciation of the problems we encounter."

Carmel Planning Commissioners, continually on the front lines of the problem, aired some of their concerns at their Sept. 14 meeting and continued an application for a demolition of an older home until after the city council study session.

The home, built sometime before 1923, straddles two lots of record and its demolition allows the new owner, contractor Chris Tescher, to construct two homes — one on each lot — to replace the one house.

"I've been wanting to to start an investigation of the problems of creating two building sites out of one," Commissioner Fred Keeble said. "It is absolutely imperative that something be done in this area. This is an example of a house not in disrepair but demolished because it is economically advantageous to demolish it and put two houses on the two lots."

AN APPLICATION to the Carmel Planning Commission to demolish this older home on Camino Real Street between Seventh and Eighth avenues was continued until the commission received some direction from the council about ordinances and policies concerning the residential district. Contractor Chris Tescher told the commission that the home had serious repair problems, but the commissioners felt that it appeared in relatively good condition. Demolition of older Carmel cottages has become a concern of both the commission and the city council, which will conduct a workshop Sept. 27 on changes in the residential district. The meeting is scheduled for 4 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 27 in Carmel City Council Chambers. (Alan McEwen photo.)

Keeble has also stated his concerns about the changing face of the the residential district.

"I'm getting concerned about the number of lots that are being split to put two houses where there was one and each one of the houses are built out to the maximum. Most of them are two story also.

"I feel that it is adversely affecting the character of the surrounding neighborhood. I think we should look at the residential district codes the same as we recently did with the commercial district."

Keeble was referring to a recently approved ordinance that established stricter building coverage and open space requirements for the commercial district.

White said he was concerned not only about lot splits, but the tendency for new homes to build to the maximum size allowed by the code.

"I think we are going to lose some of Carmel's character if we are not careful," he added.

Statistics from the Carmel Planning Department bear out some of those concerns.

Estimates show 224 new homes could be built if all houses located on two lots with the same owner were demolished and a home was built on both lots.

Many homes and large estates, such as the Countess Kinnoull estate on Torres Street, appear to be one lot, but are actually recorded as numerous legal lots of record. There is little the city can do to stop a property owner from building on all the legal lots of record.

There are also 155 vacant lots of record in the residential district, all potential building sites.

Adding both numbers on potential building sites, the planning department projects that 379 new single-family homes could be added to Carmel at any time, most on 40-foot by 100-foot lots.

In 1985, the number of requests for demolition of homes was four; in 1986, two; 1987, six; and in 1988 so far, an estimated eight, or double the number in 1985, only three-quarters of the way into the year.

The number of applications for new homes or additions have gone from 50 in 1985; 30 in 1986; 38 in 1987; and to 55 in the year to date, 1988.

The drop in 1986 and 1987 may be attributed to the water moratorium on building and confusion over the laws.

The percentage of two-story applications, both home and additions, was 45 percent in 1981-82; 41 percent, 1985-86; and 49 percent year to date in 1987-88.

Speculators and developers are not the only problem. The median price of a Carmel home is $305,000, according to Monty Dias of Old California Title Co. in Monterey. Those figures are undergoing a revision, Dias added, and should go even higher.

According to Ocean Avenue Realty, the price of a 4,000-square-foot (40 feet by 100 feet) vacant lot can range from $120,000 to $600,000, depending on the location, view and topography.

Additionally, the real estate market has "exploded" here in Carmel, one real estate agent said, to the point that demand far exceeds supply. Vacant lots are almost impossible to get.

With such rising prices, buyers and home builders try to maximize the use of their property. It no longer pays to build "little redwood cottages" that "snuggle" into the terrain and trees.

One real estate broker said that building a new home costs less than remodeling an older home, leading to many of the older homes being purchased primarily for their "lot value."

Another growing problem with building out the lots to the maximum the code allows, is the lack of space for trees.

Older trees are removed to make way for the larger, new house and there is no room for replacement trees with an equivalent canopy.

'I'm perceiving that a lot of neighborhoods are beginning to change drastically in their look. I think we are going to lose some of Carmel's character if we are not careful.'

— Ken White

— City councilman

"I think (the present trend) is unfortunate. and if that continues, Carmel may well lose its special identity," Wright said.

Inevitable reality

Dear Editor:

I have a problem with the monumental years of focus on the inevitable reality of the "Hatton" project. The stance that has been taken by both pro and con has been a signal of progress with moderation that everyone can live with. The echoes of "environment," "design," and "alternatives" must now be put on a scale of approval. Any more prolonged decision on the "Hatton" project can only make the finished product obsolete and the traffic problems more costly.

Art and politics

Dear Editor:

The late Daisy Bostick, and early-day Carmel author, on pages 20 and 21 of her book Carmel At Work and Play (1925), described the late Perry Newberry's approach to his candidacy for a seat on the Carmel City Council. She further described how Carmel artists viewed danger signals to Carmel's future development — a problem we are still faced with. The description follows:

The Artists in Politics.

A few years ago, the artists became alarmed at the threatening encroachment of Progress and elected an art ticket to the local Board of Trustees. The slogan was — "Keep Carmel off the map. We don't want Boosters' Clubs, Get-Together Organizations or Chambers of Commerce."

One of the candidates, Perry Newberry, — artist, writer, journalist, — made his fight on the following platform:

"Believing that was 9,999 towns out of 10,000 want is just what Carmel shouldn't have, I am a candidate for trustee on the platform, DON'T BOOST! I am making a spirited campaign to win by asking those who disagree with me to vote against me."

Mr. Newberry tacked his poster on the town bulletin-board. It read:

"Don't Vote for Perry Newberry
If you hope to see Carmel become a city.
If you want its growth boosted.
If you desire its commercial success.
If street lamps on its corners mean happiness to you.
If concrete street pavements represent your civic ambitions.
If you have less regard for the unique character of Carmel than for the opportunity of money making.
If you think that a glass factory is of greater value than a sand dune, or a millionaire than an artist, or a mansion than a little brown cottage.
If you truly want Carmel to become a boosting, hustling, wide-awake lively metropolis,
DON'T VOTE FOR PERRY NEWBERRY

Thank you for your anticipated courtesy in printing the foregoing.

Valuable open space

Dear Editor:

Congratulations and many thanks to the Carmel Planning Commission for deciding at yesterday's meeting that the sale of its two lots on Lincoln and Sixth is not in conformity with Carmel's General Plan. Hopefully, the city council will follow the planning commission's lead and reverse their decision to sell this valuable open space.

It's a shame that the city did not purchase the Grunion Run property (the former Village Electric site), when it was available. Buying that land for parking would have gone a long way in helping to relieve our ever-present parking problem.

Stilled voices

Dear Editor:

The Monterey Peninsula this month lost two highly esteemed citizens. They were very different but in one respect identical...they were unwavering in their duty to their community.

What Jefferson said in 1787, Gunnar Norberg said for his city and his county and Jan Criley for her entire world as long as we knew them, "What country can preserve its liberties if it's not warned from time to time that its people preserve the spirit of resistance."

In like vein, a great historian once said, "An idle man who wants his politics done for him will have them done for him." Gunnar was the model citizen of courage to call his beloved city's attention to its faults while Jan shouldered her country's shortcomings, her concerns knowing no boundaries. Two voices we needed and valued not because they told us what to think but always excited us to start thinking.

These two remarkable people have passed the conscience of their worlds onto us. They asked and have not stopped asking just one thing of us all...our vigilance.

Endless frustrations

Dear Editor:

I served on the "Advisory Committee to Caltrans Regarding Design to Route 1—Hatton Canyon" from Feb. 7, 1984 until its dissolution March 27, 1987.

Before, during and since that experience, I have endured endless frustrations as this project was delayed time and again for relatively minor reasons. I have watched, heard and smelled the traffic grow along this portion of Highway 1 as I live at its worst bottleneck. I have seen emergency vehicles stopped dead while gridlocked motorists were forced to take unusual and dangerous evasive actions. I have opened my home and telephone to accident victims.

I have shuddered at the close calls as Carmel High students burst into this maze, morning and afternoon and football Saturdays. I have been a daily part of it all. I have been patient.

Therefore...I would feel that an unconscionable act will have been performed if the latest in a series of delaying tactics is allowed to abort—through loss of federal funds, or whatever—the construction of this vital stretch of highway.

I have no problem living here (everyone has to get onto Highway 1 sometime or other...we just get there quicker). My only regret is that this fact may tend to alter someone's perception of my concerns. Believe me, they have been solidly created over time through first-hand observations...urgent concerns, not for the inconveniences, but for the safety and well-being of all who pass this way.

MAYOR'S REPORT

By Jean Grace

An exemplary example

THE PEOPLE of Carmel-by-the-Sea, more than most others in the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, have managed in their usual fashion of quick response, to decrease their water usage. I want to share the following letter with you:

Dear Mayor Grace:

"On behalf of the board of directors of the Montery Peninsula Water Management District, please convey my congratulations and appreciation to the people of Carmel-by-the-Sea for a job well done. Water consumption this past June dropped from consumption rates of this same time last year!

"What makes your city's achievement even more notable is Carmel-by-the-Sea was one of only two communities where water use was down. In all other communities, water consumption rose. The result was that water consumption districtwide was almost 12 percent over our goal for the period (a 10 percent savings).

"Your city has set an exemplary course to follow; I urge your citizens to hold fast to that course. I would also encourage your city council to continue its leadership role in this effort. If we are to avoid hardship, we cannot afford to let down our vigilance.

"Should the drought continue into November and December of this year, voluntary actions just won't be enough. The district will be forced to ration water. The district's Urban Water Conservation Steering Committee (Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo is a newly-appointed member of this committee), along with a subcommittee of the board, is developing a rationing plan. Their first meeting is slated for 2 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 22, 1988 in the Seaside City Council Chambers. While not a public hearing, the public is invited.

"Again, congratulations, and please thank your community for their water conservation efforts!"

Very truly yours,
Michael Ricker
Water Demand Manager
Monterey Peninsula
Water Management District

Let's keep up the good conservation efforts, and throw in some prayers and rain-dances for good measure!

Yours in Hopes of Rain,

Jean Grace

Wasted water

Dear Editor:

One of the complaints voiced at the public hearing was a challenge to the definition of wasted water. The ordinance as written defines wasted water only as water misused from the potable or drinking water supply, in other words the water from Cal-Am taps. No allowance was considered for wasted water from wells, from storm water collection systems, from rain water off roofs or for any recycling potential of local ponds and lakes. Perhaps this bureaucracy fails to realize the full potential, and magnitude, of these other sources of usable water and just makes a popular, easy way out.

Some of us believe that our wasted water supplies in this peninsula watershed(s) are probably 10 times the wasted water from our water delivery systems. Further, many of our private wells, especially in Carmel Valley are mainly potable water, or potentially drinking water, since they draw their supplies from the very same ground water (aquifers) that provide our domestic water supplies.

Case in point is the water used by the four valley golf courses which draw heavily upon the Carmel Valley aquifer, in and around the Cal-Am wells. Yet all of those courses co substitute recycled water to keep their t.. green.

Carmel Valley ranch does have a fine sewage and reclamation plant and system yet after eight years of operation it still is relying nearly 90 percent upon well water underneath the valley floor. Nearly 1,000 acre feet of water are used in these golf course landscapes in the valley. Yet all of them could be converted to 100 percent recycled water with the right economic incentives and system. But when will this be done?

We've had some 10 years to develop a sound water conservation program and to minimize wasted water. This new penalty-ladened ordinance is hardly the answer to the avoidance of wasted water during droughts and long-term water supply production for an inevitable growing population.

Back to the drawing boards or replace your water board ASAP.

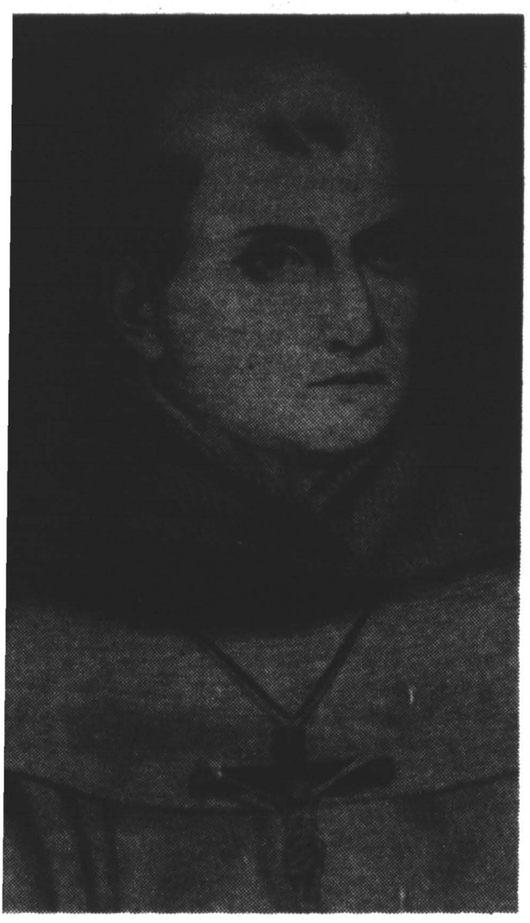
Serra reaches second step on way to sainthood

By DAVID LELAND

DURING THIS Sunday's beatification ceremony for Fr. Junipero Serra at . Peter's Basilica in Rome, Monterey eninsula members of Serra International will surely be paying close attention to the proceedings.

With 16,500 Catholic lay men and women 528 clubs, located in 29 countries, Serra International's principal objective is to foster cations to the priesthood, religious life and develop Christian service.



ATHER JUNIPERO Serra, who founded ine of the state's 21 missions, including 'armel Mission, will be beatified in St. 'eter's Basilica in Rome on Sept. 25. (Photo ourtesy of Serra Club International.)

Locally, about 40 members of the rganization plan to say an early-morning lass at the Carmel Mission, according to pokesman Larry Girard.

Serra was selected as patron when the rganization was founded in Seattle in 1934, hen founding members were searching for a atron who was "apostolic, Western and hallenging."

"We're thrilled to have Father Serra eceive this honor," said John Quaglia, club resident. "Serra clubs are best known for romoting and supporting vocations to riesthood and religious life, and our ounders selected Father Serra as our patron ecause he was a priest who truly preserved."

Many observers expected Pope John Paul I to beatify Serra during his visit to the eninsula a little more than a year ago. But he pope, instead, waited until he returned to ome and more investigation had been completed in November before making the announcement.

On Nov. 14, 1987, Serra's body was exumed from his grave within the Carmel Mission Basilica in order to verify that the body as indeed that of the candidate for verification — which put the finishing touches on a rocess that had begun in 1934.

Canonization occurs in three steps:

• During the first step the candidate is deemed "venerable," which means that the person has led a heroic life.

Serra achieved this status in 1985.

• The second step, beatification, requires one miracle be approved through the candidate's intercession, unless the candidate is a martyr.

Serra miracle was approved in 1987 after a lengthy investigation by the Vatican Congress for the Cause of Saints found that Serra cured Sister Boniface Dryda of lupus about 25 years ago.

Dryda was cured after the chaplain of her convent suggested that she pray to Serra on her behlf; she later regained her health.

• The third and final step in the process is canonization itself, the church's official verification that the individual is in heaven and a worthy universal role model.

Canonization requires that an additional miracle be proved to have occured since beatification. The pope, whoever, may waive requirements for any miracle and set the day in the saint's honor on the universal liturgical calander.

Since 1645 only three of the 300 saints named so far have been American — as Serra would be considered — Elizabeth Ann Seton, John Neumann and Francis Xavier Cabrini.

JUNIPERO SERRA was born Miguel Serra y Abram on Nov. 24, 1713 in Petra, Spain, and at 16 entered the Franciscan friary and took the name of Junipero, after St. Francis' close, extroverted friend.

Despite being known as an articulate scholar, in 1749 he responded to the call for Franciscan missionaries to the New World.

Serra's first assignment was to the rugged, mountainous region of Sierra Gorda, which is now a portion of Mexico.

He remained there for nine years, preaching to the Indians and strengthening the two missions already established in the area.

His second assignment was to journey out from Mexico City into the coastal villages and mining camps. During those years he walked more than 6,000 miles on foot to administer sacraments, despite a leg chronically infected and ulclerated after an insect bite.

In 1767, when the King of Spain banished the Jesuit Society from his dominions, the 13 Jesuit missions in Baja California were suddenly left unstaffed and Serra was assigned to that region for two years until he was appointed Padre Presidente of California.

Serra then joined the expedition of Don Gaspar de Portola, ordered by the Spanish king to explore and occupy new territory.

He reached San Diego on June 27, 1769 and founded the first mission, San Diego de Alcala. From there, the party travelled northward and in April of 1770, Serra founded the Carmel Mission.

During his 15 years as Padre Presidente, Serra established nine of the state's 21 missions, each a one-day walk apart (about 30 miles). These were linked by a dirt road called "El Camino Real."

Serra oversaw the planning, construction and staffing of each mission from his headquarters in Carmel. He travelled on foot to the other missions along the California coast to supervise mission work and to confer the sacrament of Confirmation.

Biographers estimate that, still bothered by an infected leg, Serra walked more than 24,000 miles in the state, more than the journeys of Marco Polo and Lewis and Clark combined.

He kept with determination to his watchword, "Always to go forward and never turn back."

THE MISSIONS Serra founded had two purposes: to convert Indians to Catholicism, and to civilize Indians by teaching them to farm and build. It was this twofold purpose which caused Serra's impact to be felt in both religious and historical spheres.

And while some Indian groups have demonstrated against Serra for his alleged brutality against the natives, at least one expert said the period of history must be taken into account when judging the man.

"The real question is whether by late 18th century standards Serra was unduly severe with the California natives, or was he just strict," said Dr. Donald C. Cutter. "In the late 18th century, and for a long time after that, learning in Spain was accompanied by the use of physical force, or at least by the threat of it. Physical coercion was used with Spaniards and Indians alike — it was an educational norm."

Serra did not die a martyr as he had hoped. Instead, he died a quiet, natural death at Carmel Mission on Aug. 28, 1784.

Interest in the canonization of Serra began in 1934, when the Franciscan order officially began the process that would span decades: the cause of Serra.

In the early 1950s the Rev. Noel Moholy, a young Franciscan seminary professor, took over the task of promoting Serra's cause, a cause that would become a passion of his lifetime.

Serra International played an important part in this early process by presenting a resolution and petition with 18,000 signatures in Serra's behalf to Pope Paul VI.

For three years beginning in 1982, 11 religious historians reviewed a thick document containing all of Serra's words and in 1985 agreed that Serra practiced Christian virtue to a heroic degree.

Serra is scheduled for beatification at 3 p.m. Roman time Sunday, Sept. 25.

Carmel jeweler's ornate cross may be worn during beatification

By JEFF GOULARTE

WHEN POPE John Paul II beatifies Father Junipero Serra in Rome Sept. 25, he might be wearing an ornate crucifix made specially for the occasion by Carmel jeweler Kirkor Kocek.

Kocek presented the cross to the pope in a special audience while in Rome June 8, and he said he asked the pope to wear the cross during Serra's beatification ceremony.

"I told him that if you wear this, it will be important to me and I'd be honored. He said he'd consider it."

The cross is a replica of the one buried with Serra, Kocek said. Weighing a little less than five ounces, it has double crossbars and is 5 and a half inches long by 2 and three-quarter inches wide. Mostly made from 18-karat yellow gold, the cross features the figures of Christ and the Virgin Mary in silver.

Richard Menn, curator of the Carmel Mission museum said the original cross was found with Serra's remains when the missionary was exhumed in 1943. It's symbolic value is a "devotion peculiar to the Caravaca region of Spain in the 13th Century."

Kocek said he spent a month and a half working on the cross over the period of a year. He "underestimated" its value at $8,000 and had hoped to present it to the pope during his visit to the peninsula last September. But Kocek said, "the Secret Service wouldn't allow the public to have contact with the pope."

Kocek's said his audience with the pope lasted a little less than two minutes, but considering all the time involved in the project he wasn't disappointed with the brevity of the audience.

"Are you kidding?" he said. "I was thrilled. To me it was the most beautiful thing that could happen to me. The way I see it, I reached my goal. How many people have the chance to give the pope something face to face?"

Kocek said he was first approached by the Carmel Mission about six years ago to craft a 24-karat gold chalice for the papal visit. Kocek would supply the labor, the church the gold. Eventually, however, the church decided against having the cup made, he said.

But Kocek was determined to fulfill one of his ambitions. And when it was announced that the pope would visit the peninsula last September, Kocek's creativity was sparked.

"Ever since I was a little kid, I wanted to make something to donate to a museum. I figured the cross would be a great gift from the Carmel Mission to the pope and from me to Carmel for the pope."

Kocek said his papal audience was arranged by Bishop Thaddeus Shubsda of the Monterey diocese, which bought him and his wife, Angelica, tickets to attend the mass audience. Kocek said about 7,000 people attended the June 8 audience, but he was one of 25 people the pope personally greeted.

Of Armenian descent, Kocek was born and raised in Instanbul, Turkey. He said he came to the United States in 1970 and lived in Los Angeles for eight months.

He moved to Carmel at the end of 1970, working at a wholesale outlet, The Golden Crucible, for a short time before opening his own business in 1972.

Kocek Jeweler, located on San Carlos and Ocean Avenue across the street from Wells Fargo Bank, specializes in making custom jewelery and redoing old jewlery.

Supervisors to consider use of radar in Carmel Valley

THE CARMEL Valley Property Owners Association will attempt to convince county supervisors this week to give radar a try in controlling speeding vehicles on Carmel Valley Road.

The plan, which received the endorsement of the CVPOA in June, asks the Monterey County Board of Supervisors to adopt a resolution establishing a pilot program to allow the California Highway Patrol the use radar in the valley.

"We urge this on the basis that CVPOA has documented the need for radar; the public support for its use; the probable beneficial effects it will bring and the capability of the community to raise funds," said Dick Nimmons, CVPOA president.

CVPOA pointed to Orinda, in Contra Costa County, which began use of radar on its rural roads in 1981.

After the first year, reportable accidents decreased by 42 percent and speeding at 15 mph over the limit dropped by 57 percent, according to CHP statistics.

During 1987, the accident rate on radar-patrolled roads was reduced by 17 percent, while the rate on non-radar patrolled freeways in that area increased by 4 percent, according to the CHP.

"In short," Nimmons said, "radar works. It saves lives. It reduces speed and cuts down on accidents."

Carmel Valley Road's accident statistics bear out the fact that driving on the valley's main thoroughfare can be a dangerous proposition.

During the past five years through 1987 there have been 528 accidents between Carmel Rancho Boulevard and Esquiline Road. Of those accidents six were fatal, 523 involved injuries and 266 involved property only.

Thus far in 1988 there have been two fatalities.

If the resolution is adopted, the $4,000 to purchase radar guns will be borne by private donations.

"Through gifts from association members, the CVPOA has been assured of sufficient funds to purchase two radar units," Nimmons said. "These units would be turned over to the county Department of Public Works, which would, in turn, provide them to the highway patrol."

Nimmons adds that CHP Capt. Jim Munson has "assured CVPOA that radar units will be used to apprehend both speeders and excessively slow drivers who often cause accidents by frustrating drivers and causing them to pass unsafely."

The CHP is scheduled to make a presentation before supervisors next week.

The item is scheduled for 10 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 27 in the supervisors chambers in the courthouse in Salinas.

Economics putting squeeze on city's character

homes and discourage the growing trend toward two-story houses.

Prior to the 1985 revisions, lot coverage for a two-story residence was 30 percent, 35 percent with planning commission approval. A single-story home was allowed 40 percent lot coverage.

Though the single-story home was permitted more lot coverage, in actuality a two-story home could have much more total square footage. Both the first and second story could have the same amount of square footage, doubling the floor area.

With 40 percent lot coverage, a single-family home on a 4,000 square foot lot, could have 1,600 square feet. A two-story house could have 1,200 square feet on the first floor and 1,200 square feet on the second floor for a total of 2,400 square feet.

In 1985, an ordinance was approved that changed that so the total floor area could be 45 percent of the lot size, and the builder could decide whether it was divided between a first and second floor or all located in a single-family home.

The "footprint" of the building on the lot could not exceed 45 percent of the building site with an additional 15 percent of sidewalks, driveways and other impermeable surfaces. Total coverage is 60 percent of the lot.

"The changes in the ordinance were intended to discourage two-story homes," Wright said. "I don't think it has helped. Once the ordinance was enacted, the results were not what we anticipated."

Setbacks were not changed in 1985 and remain a point of contention. On sideyards, a house must be 3 feet from the property line, but can have a roof overhang of 18 inches into that 3-foot setback. This can bring homes within 3 feet of each other.

"I've been standing between two homes where you can reach out and touch the eaves on both roofs," a real estate agent said.

Both the front and back of the house must have 15-foot setbacks from the property line. There are some extra rules for the rear setback, depending upon the height of the home.

With the small 4,000 square foot Carmel lots, many feel that building out as much as the code allows makes the neighborhoods too congested.

"Our small lots, I don't think, should have maximum-sized home. They weren't intended for that. Those lots were intended for vacation homes, getaways," White said.

Remodels over a specified size and all new homes go through planning commission design review; a process that combines the code and the more subjective interpretations of planning commissioners.

Since 1986, the commission has reviewed 95 applications and rejected two. One of those denials was overturned by the city council. The commission often asks that an application be resubmitted until it is acceptable to the majority.

For approval, the commission must find that a home meets certain "findings" or criteria listed in the code.

Those include sensitivity to "site features and topography"; retention of any unique site features; the building acheives a "human scale and residential character"; does not "unreasonably" or "inequitably" block public and private views; respects privacy rights; and permits air and sunlight. It must also be "be compatible with the overall characteristics of the neighborhood."

"Our feeling is that discretionary powers are something that is questionable," Keeble said, speaking for some of the commissioners. "If the building meets the code regulations, there is not much we can do. If you are going to start denying applications on discretionary powers, you have to come up with some kind of policy."

The code which dictates the size and mass of a home on a lot should be revised so people will know the parameters of what they can do on their property, Keeble said.

Keeble said he believes design review should be used to control the "extremes" in designs, from those that resemble assembly line homes to those which have features that visually intrude upon the neighborhood. Maintaining the characteristics of a residential neighborhood is important in the planning commission's review, he added.

The advent of the speculator home and the increase in property values in Carmel is threatening those neighborhoods, he believes.

"The residences in Carmel have become a commodity rather than a home," he states.

Hatton freeway design unacceptable to CVPOA

THE CARMEL Valley Property Owners Association issued "A Statement of Concern" regarding the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway saying that the freeway as presently conceived is "unacceptable because it does not respond to the traffic problems of the majority of its users."

The statement was approved by CVPOA directors at their monthly meeting Sept. 15 in Carmel Valley.

"Residents and commuters in Carmel Valley deserve a comprehensive solution to existing and anticipated traffic congestion which means not only resolving access to and from Highway 1, but coordination with traffic to and from the businesses and residences at the mouth of the valley," the statement said in part.

Such a solution does not exist in the present Caltrans design of traffic flow at the foot of the valley, the statement added.

"The county and Caltrans should be required to come up with a coordinated solution," the statement continued. "The solution which presently favors the approximately 15 per cent of the drivers down Highway 1 and which gives inferior treatment to the 85 per cent going to Carmel Valley or to the valley mouth businesses is obviously unsatisfactory."

Rod Mills, CVPOA vice president and chairman of its roads and trails committee, enlarged upon reasons why the association board found Caltrans' present traffic proposal unacceptable. He cited four points.

The majority of users, he emphasized, will be subjected to an increased number of traffic lights on the routes they must take and these lights hold promise of bottlenecks and traffic jams.

Because there is no southbound exit at Rio Road, he said, there will be a significant increase of traffic at Carmel Valley Road and Carmel Rancho Road plus a more complex intersection at Carmel Valley Road and old Highway 1.

The majority of users, he added, will travel through a series of two or more signals of which some are operated by Caltrans and others by Monterey County. These signals must be coordinated or traffic congestion will result.

A solution to these problems, Mills suggested, would be a free-flowing over or underpass to permit southbound traffic to turn east on Carmel Valley Road.

R.T. Nimmons , president of CVPOA, said last week's action and statement of concern was part of the board's plan to formulate an advisory for the association's 1,000 members regarding the freeway and CVPOA's current stand regarding it. "We're still in favor of the freeway, the implementation is what's bothering us," said Nimmons.

In 1983 a special freeway committee took eight months to study the plans then existing on the freeway. Its study was released to CVPOA's members and a membership ballot was taken resulting in 537 members, or 73 per cent of the 738 ballots cast, voting in favor of the Hatton Canyon scenic highway.

At the time the study and vote were undertaken, Nimmons said, many of the design and traffic flow complexities were not yet known. The CVPOA board believes these must now be taken into account in arriving at an association position statement advising members of CVPOA's views to favor the freeway as now designed and proposed or not. The board will continue to examine its position but for now, he stressed, the "Statement of Concern" will be distributed to Caltrans, county officials, and elected representatives of government as well as the Coastal Commission because it reflects concern over what CVPOA believes are flaws in the concept.

Here is the statement in its entirety:

"We believe that the Hatton Canyon Freeway project as now conceived is unacceptable because it does not respond to the traffic problems of the majority of its users.

"Residents and commuters in Carmel Valley deserve a comprehensive solution to existing and anticipated traffic congestion. This means not only resolving access to and from Highway 1, but coordination with traffic to and from the businesses and residences at the mouth of the Valley.

"The County and Caltrans should be required to come up with a coordinated solution. The solution which favors the approximately 15 per cent of the drivers down Highway 1 and which gives inferior treatment to the 85 per cent going to Carmel Valley or to the valley mouth businesses is obviously unsatisfactory."

Coastal Commission's Hatton freeway hearing Sept. 29

CALTRANS' PROPOSED Hatton Canyon Freeway project is scheduled to be heard at the state Coastal Commission's hearing in San Diego Oct. 11-14, but not before a hearing is held in Carmel first.

The commission has scheduled an informational meeting starting at 6:15 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 29 at the Sunset Center, San Carlos between Eighth and 10th avenues. Project displays will be available at that time for viewing. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m., at which time the public will be given an opportunity to express their views and concerns about the project.

Coastal Commission staff will conduct the hearing; all oral comments will be summarized and presented to coastal commissioners, along with commission staff recommendations, all prior to the October hearing in San Diego.

The commission will also accept written comments, which will also be forwarded to commissioners. Please address written comments to: California Coastal Commission, Central Coast District, 701 Ocean St., Room 310, Santa Cruz CA 95060, Attn. Rick Hyman.

Village Corner proposes a solarium for its patio

By NANCY HILLS

THE VILLAGE Corner restaurant may get a solarium to cover its outdoor patio if the Carmel Planning Commission approves the plans Wednesday.

The commission will review an application by Robert Carlisle, owner of the restaurant on the corner of Dolores Street and Sixth Avenue, to enclose the patio on Sixth Avenue in glass. Carlisle has owned the Village Corner for five years.

The commission will meet at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 28 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

Carlisle said that they will be able to open the glass doors along the sidewalk and open a portion of the roof.

"The construction is laminated beams and glass, so it is not aluminum. The doors are 9-foot custom oak with panes of beveled and stained glass. The stained glass work will be one by an artist at our gallery," Carlisle said. He also owns the Gateway Gallery.

To build the solarium, Carlisle said he will replace the patio fireplace with a planter of flowers and will have hanging flowers baskets. He will "try to keep the grape arbor. It should flourish in there."

"It should be a beautiful addition to the city," he said.

The glass roof will hide the restaurant's kitchen vents on the roof behind the patio, he added.

In the 1960s, it was a gathering place for artists, including folk singer Joan Baez.

"It has always been a gathering place for everyone," Carlisle said. "To my knowledge it is the oldest restaurant in Carmel in continuous existence — if you discount places like the Pine Inn where they serve food and offer lodging."

About 11 years ago, the Village Inn became a focus of controversy when the property owners planned to remove the restaurant and replace it with offices.

Carlisle said that he has had the plans up in the Village Corner for three months and has collected "over 3,000 signatures of Monterey Peninsula residents" in favor of solarium.

"I have not had one patron that has said they don't like the plans," he added.

"I started doing this four years ago. It's basically for the comfort and convenience of our customers and since we are a restaurant with a heavily resident customer base, it is for the comfort and convenience of the residents," Carlisle said.

"A lot of people walk to the post office and come back to have coffee or breakfast and it would be nice to be able to sit outside on a foggy or windy day," he explained.

The patio has 32 seats, he said, and the interior of the restaurant 33.

Carlisle said that property owners Ted and Robert Leidig support his plans.

The city has objected to the plans based on enclosure of open space.

The commission will vote both on a use permit for the project and conduct a design review.

Council to decide fate of two vacant library lots

THE CARMEL Planning Commission determined Sept. 14 that the sale of two city-owned lots across from Harrison Memorial Library is not in compliance with the city's general plan.

The money from the sale of the lots, now used as informal public parking, is intended to help pay for other city projects. The library parking lot on the corner is not included in the proposed sale.

One project is the purchase of the Thomas Handley property on Junipero Avenue, priced at approximately $2.5 million.

The planning commission's finding is a recommendation to the city council, which will consider the decision at its Oct. 4 meeting.

The city council will make the final determination about the sale of the lots.

The property was acquired in 1980 and 1981 for the proposed library annex building, but the city purchased the Crocker Bank building on Mission Street for that purpose.

To sell city land, the commission must find that it is surplus property and, therefore, its sale complies with general plan policies. The lots, though only one block from Ocean Avenue, are zoned residential.

The owners of the Pine Inn and the city had discussed a joint venture public/private two-level parking facility at the site, but no agreement was reached. The council had approved a special ordinance that allowed for a parking facility in the residential district at that site.

An appraisal of the two lots priced them at a total of $250,000, about $120,000 less than the city paid for them.

City administrator Doug Schmitz explained later that the city does not have to sell the lots at their appraised value. They could go to the highest bidder.

Arguments for sale of the lots in the commissioner's packets included the elimination of public parking in the residential zone, the possibility of more housing and limitation of commercial activities.

The commission, in its review, was primarily concerned with the loss of parking spaces for the city if the lots were sold, and the appraised value.

"I'm entirely against selling this property," Commissioner Ed Hicks said. "It would be a terrific buy for somebody, but a better buy for the city. It's the cheapest property in town and the cheapest parking — about $2 to $3 a space. If we sell it, we will never be able to replace it."

A comment by Commissioner Stephen Poohar that the general plan calls for establishment of priorities for the sale or trade of public property and that he did not believe that the sale of the lots represented any long-term plan generated a rebuttal from Schmitz.

"The council spent 10 hours in budget meetings," Schmitz said. The sale of the lots was one way to generate some revenue for the larger capital improvement projects.

Former planning commissioner Howard Neiman Jr. also spoke against selling the lots, outlining his reason based on general plan policies.

"There exists an excellent view from these two lots. A two-story structure would diminish the public views and otherwise contribute to the extensive development of this area," Neiman said.

"The circulation element also supports the need for off-street parking," he added.

The commission agreed to include Neiman's letter in their findings for the city council.

THE CARMEL Planning Commission found that the sale of two city-owned lots used for public parking on Lincoln Street was not in compliance with the general plan. The money from the sale is to help fund captital improvement projects, such as the purchase of the Thomas Handley property. The city council will make the final decision about selling any public property. (Chuck Scardina photo.)

There are about 70,000 women on Uncle Sam's payroll. Most of them are affected by the reclassification act passed in the closing days of the last Congress. PLANNERS BOW TO PLEA; REVOKE WINDOW PERMIT

Carmel's combination Board of Adjustments, Planning Commission and Design Review Board had an active meeting yesterday afternoon.

Weightiest matter to come before the group, then sitting as the adjustments panel, was an appeal by 75 signatories to a petition pleading for revocation of a previous decision permitting the remodeling of the store windows of Carmel Galleries on Ocean Ave.

The Design Review Committee had requested the applicant bring in an elevation showing the proposed change, but it was not supplied, since the applicant stated he felt this was an added burden to Carmel Galleries and the permit had already been granted.

After much discussion, the appeal was accepted and the previous resolution was revoked.

PROMINENT LAWYER TO FIGHT HOT TUB BAN

Francis Heisler, the civil rights attorney who successfully defended the hippies who sat in Devendorf Plaza 10 years ago, is taking on what he called "another civil liberties case involving the city of Carmel."

At issue this time, however, is a hot tub and a putting green. The indoor hot tub was installed in August at the Carmel Resort Inn at Carpenter and First Avenue. The putting green installation is pending. The owner, Tong Kim, wants city permission to let his guests use both amenities.

So far, the tub, putting green and attorney fees to get city approval for both have cost Kim an estimated $30,000. The Carmel Planning Commission and City Council both rejected Kim's use permit application for the putting green and his design proposal for an outdoor hot tub.

Public hearing on Cachagua Area Plan before supervisors

By DAVID LELAND

PUBLIC TESTIMONY continues next week before county supervisors regarding the draft Cachagua Area Plan.

If this session is anything like the previous hearing, held Aug. 30, there are bound to be several unresolved issues argued.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors has scheduled the hearing at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 27 in the supervisors chambers in the courthouse in Salinas.

Much of the public testimony at the previous hearing was input by members of the Citizens Advisory Committee, which prepared the initial draft of the plan.

The seven-member committee signed a letter saying that the Monterey County Planning Commission draft of the plan "fails to recognize local conditions and concerns that affect the Cachagua planning area."

The advisory committee had spent about a year and 27 meetings in coming up with its draft plan.

The purpose of the public hearing is for the board to consider adoption of the Cachagua Area Plan as part of the Monterey County General Plan and to consider certification of the final environmental impact report.

"This is truly a historic step; we are reviewing the very last area plan in Montery County," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, adding that there are eight other such plans countywide. "In some ways this is the last outpost in Monterey County."

Cachagua residents appear to have different goals in mind for the planning area than the planning commission.

"There is something wrong with the thinking of a governmental body when they change the philosophy of an area," said Charity Crane, chairman of the citizens advisory committee.

The subject of tourism, which the planning commission has recommended be promoted, is one of several bones of contention.

"We don't encourage tourism," Crane said. "Our roads are not that adequate."

She questioned placing advertisements touting the joys of Cachagua in magazines appealing to tourists.

"I think Cachagua is a place that tourists will find if they really want to get there," she said.

Other issues being discussed include: the amount of acreage for agricultural zoning; whether or not public hiking trails should be developed in the area and should AT&T be allowed to expand its facilities there.

After-school program offered at CMS.

THE FIRST three offerings in the Carmel Middle School's after-school program begins this Monday, Sept. 26.

There will be two four-week sessions of classes, the first from Sept. 26-Oct. 20, the second from Oct. 20-Nov. 17.

Classes include:

• "Tennis and Fitness Training" with coach John Ables, from 3 to 4:45 p.m., Sept. 26-Oct. 20, Monday through Thursday at CMS tennis courts. The class deals with the fundamentals of the game as well as fitness training and eye-hand coordination exercises; $52.

• "Art Workshop" with Lori Bothwell, 3 to 4:30 p.m., Sept. 26-Oct. 19, Mondays and Wednesday, eight classes, CMS Art Room No. A2. Focus is on two and three-dimensional art, basic drawing and painting techniques, watercolor and design as well as batik. All materials included; $24.

• "Computer Lab" with Susan Armstrong, 3 to 4:30 p.m. Sept. 27-Oct. 20, eight classes, CMS Computer Room No. L1. Learning and using the Apple IIe lab at CMS; $24.

For more information call Barbara Beck, child care coordinator, at 624-1546.

History board seeks applicants

FIFTH DISTRICT Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman is seeking applicants for a newly created Historic Review Board. This board will identify and safeguard the historical county areas as outlined in the Historic Resources Zoning District Ordinance.

THE FANATIC GARDENER

By K. Mose Fadeem

Comes The Respite

IT IS that time of year in my garden when leaf litter characterizes the lower parts or what is known as the understory. A rough estimate would put about 70 percent of summer production on the garden floor. In plain garden English, it's a mess.

Aside from the deciduous vines, the evergreens begin to also lighten their load for the winter. I forget who it was that said the only difference between deciduous and evergreen plant is that one of them loses its leaves all at once. Most of the evergreen vines get severely pruned anyway and their leaves scattered with the rest of the seasonal mulch.

Every year this event brings on a dramatic change, and every year that change is equally startling. This particular garden is built like a vegetable box which makes it summer thick with vines overhead as well as screening the sides. Dappled sun and light filter through to the lower plants, ferns, philodendron, and the like. With autumnal fall, however, there is an explosion of light within. That may sound a bit dramatic, but the change occurs rather suddenly (albeit with the help of pruning shears), drawing summer to an abrupt close.

This shifting abundance of light always strikes me as peculiar, because it's contrary to normal cyclical seasoning. That is, the garden is light in winter and dark in summer. It wasn't designed intentionally in this way but appears to be the natural result of an abundance of vines cohabitating a small area. I wonder if some of the shade plants below haven't adapted their behavior to putting on an early rush of growth in the light of spring before the canopy develops.

In any event, as the days grow shorter we enter into that time of the temperate year when vitality takes a rest. Some gardens express this more than others, especially on the California coast where there is a strong attraction to evergreens. Except for annuals and bulbs some gardens keep their clothed look pretty much year round; others are inclined to show their bones, the bare structure of it all. A few colorful plants that thrive in the cool, such as white callas or cyclamen, offer an ironic touch to the barren complexion.

I tried winter gardening here some time ago, but 12 months of abundance quickly lost its appeal, and I gave it up after a year. There was too little reward as well as an uncomfortable feeling of incongruence. Perhaps eternal spring wears thin. The raw season with its harsh skeletal character and cool shadows can be not only meaningful but a pleasure in itself. It also serves as a respite from too much exuberance.

Some fanatic friends on the peninsula have mentioned that it hasn't been a blue ribbon year; their gardens simply didn't have the burst of productivity that they have displayed in the past. Some attribute this to temperature variations, some to the water situation; others see in it astrological influences. Inevitably they all shrug in that way peculiar to shrugging gardeners and accept whatever nature has bequeathed them for a season. There's always next year.

FRIENDS OF Hospice is planning a Central Coast Garden Show for next April. It sounds like a marvelous idea both to benefit the Hospice and the community. With all the gardening and landscaping activity in this lush area a garden show can provide an exciting focus in the spring for everyone interested in horticulture and design while serving a good cause as well. Hopefully it will develop into an annual event.

A reception will be held Tuesday, Sept. 27 at 4 p.m. at La Playa Hotel in Carmel, at which time Richard Murray (ASLA), will give details of the show. Anyone connected in any way with the horticultural profession and fanatic gardeners who would like to be involved are welcome. Exhibitors, retailers, financial donors, and volunteers are encouraged to participate.

SENIOR LINE

By Bill Schneider

Go first class

Q. I live and work in Palo Alto to support myself and my three children. Last week when I visited my father, I read your column in a local paper and wrote down your address. I talked to Mom on the phone last night and she sounded even more tired than when I visited. Dad has had two strokes in the last three years, is partially paralyzed and needs to be helped into and out of bed. The neighbor's 14-year-old daughter helps Mom sometimes but Mom is afraid to leave Dad with this young girl. I'm afraid Mom will wind up in the hospital if she doesn't have some break from constantly waiting on Dad. Where can we get help?

RS

A. The first thing for your mother to do is face the fact that she is not an iron woman and needs help. Next, she should discuss with the doctor whether your father is a candidate for an Adult Day Care Center such as the one in Salinas operated by the Visiting Nurses Association, the one in Seaside operated by the Salvation Army or the SHARE program in Seaside. Unfortunately I can't be more specific since you didn't say where your parents live or give me enough information on you father's condition.

One thing I can say for sure is that, those participating in the above three programs, receive first-class care from first-class people. The Linkages program, sponsored by the Area Agency on Aging, can provide professional social workers and a nurse to assist in determining your father's needs, developing a care plan and arranging for services.

Q. I'll be 65 soon and will have Medicare but will also need something to help pay for the things that Medicare does not cover. I've looked at several of the Medigap type policies but it sure is hard to tell what the policies will or will not do and at what cost to me. I asked at the Social Security Office and the woman I spoke to said they were not allowed to make recommendations. Where can I get reliable information?

IK, King City

A. The Health Insurance Counseling and Advocacy Program (HICAP) administered in Monterey County by the Alliance on Aging is the place to go. HICAP volunteers won't tell you what to buy, but they will point out the good and bad features of the policies. Also, report any agents trying to sell second or third policies or a "new updated" policy, usually at a higher cost, as a result of the new Catastrophic Medicare Act. By reporting things you suspect to be bad or improper sales practices, you can help to make health care comprehensive and affordable for all of us.

Q. I have two widowed aunts who have no transportation of their own. One aunt lives in Castroville and the other in Pacific Grove. I try to get them to arrange doctor appointments, shopping etc. for my day off so that I can combine their trips. This has become increasingly difficult since they have different doctors and I cannot be sure in advance of my day off. I've heard that in some areas you can buy coupons for taxi rides at a discount. Whom do I contact?

LR, Salinas

A. Unfortunately the specialized transportation for the handicapped and elderly in Monterey County varies from area to area. There are different types of assistance such as reduced taxi fares, vans with wheelchair lifts and reduced price passes for the MST bus lines. I suggest you call RIDES, which is listed in the phone book, or the Alliance on Aging for information on the program best suited to your needs.

(Need information on senior affairs? Write Senior Line, Area Agency on Aging, 1184 Monroe Street, Suite 10, Salinas, Ca. 93906 or call 372-7662. Senior Line needs your name, address and phone number but these will be withheld on request. Printed letters may be edited to meet space requirements.)

Wine appreciation classes offered

The Monterey County Wine Society's Wine Appreciation Class meets Wednesdays at the Monterey Peninsula Winery tasting room, 786 Wave St., Monterey.

The class meets at 7:30 p.m. Participants must pre-register by calling Don Marks at 659-2909.

The class consists of learning components and varietal distinctions, wine history and tastings. Wines of the world are studied, with emphasis on California and French.

Marks, who has instructor status with the California Society of Wine Educators and who has won numerous ribbons for his homemade wines, has taught the class for 11 years. Last summer the class judged wines at the Monterey County Fair under Marks' supervision.

Starting fee is $15 per person and each class costs approximately $5 to defray the cost of the wines.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

The Vacuum Tube

THE SCENE is the bar on the CBS TV program Cheers and Diane, the show's pseudo-intellectual cocktail waitress, is engaged in one of her frequent put-downs of Sam Malone, the sexually athletic ex-jock and owner of the bar. Sam's part of the repartee includes the line, "Well, who do you want to be waited on by?"

"Sam," Diane says in her best ivory-tower manner, "You have just managed to end a sentence with two prepositions." (Laughter)

Wrong! In Sam's sentence, Diane, on is an adverb which anyone with her supposed academic credits would know in an instant. The problem is that the TV writers didn't know it and that is only the tip of the iceberg of what TV writers don't know about the English language. That mistake (along with the fact that Diane failed to call attention to the real mistake, the use of who, instead of whom), says less about Shelley Long's character than it does about the general incompetence of today's television writers. Diane has frequently said "Sam and I" where she ought to have said "Sam and me" on some writer's assumption that it sounded more elitist for the character and, quite frankly, the writer probably didn't know better. The actors are to be blamed only slightly less for reading so faithfully the ungrammatical lines they're given.

The ignorance of television writers would be less irksome if they didn't influence so many people, particularly our youth. Unfortunately, that ignorance extends beyond errors in English to a substantive lack of knowledge about history, ethnicity and just about everything else.

Announcers, for example, also reading copy prepared for them by members of the TV Writer's Guild, have contributed some noteworthy faux pas. On several occasions Agatha Christie's Murder On the Orient Express was described as murder on a snowbound train in Siberia (it is not), the Crimean War as a battle between the British and the Turks, (it was not), and a movie on the Boer War as occurring in China (it did not). At some point, a lack of education disintegrates into sheer stupidity.

Television writers appear to have little knowledge of, or interest in, grammatical or historical accuracy. Unfortunately, that fact is not obvious to many people, even when a character like Diane Chambers, enormously well educated, commits absurd and inexplicable errors. It ought to be a cardinal rule among TV writers that they never create a character with above average intelligence, because the odds are against their ability to pull it off.

One of the exceptions is the urbane and civilized Professor Kingsfield on the highly acclaimed Paper Chase and I suspect the reason can be found in the fact that John Houseman, who plays the role of the crusty old professor, had a great deal to say about his own dialogue and, quite likely, given his character, about everyone elses.

Unless you're Irish, most people wouldn't notice a situation that was always of interest to me and many of my friends. The enormously popular show *M*A*S*H* contained five characters with distinctively Irish names of which only one, Father Mulcahy, was Catholic. The others, Houlihan, O'Reilly, McIntyre, and Pierce, in one show or another, clearly identified themselves as some other religion. Since the ratio of Irish Catholics to Protestants is about six to one in this country (and about 11 to one in Ireland), this situation would be similar to a TV show about an Israeli medical unit where four of the five main Israelis were Muslims.

After a 150 years of assimilation, the Irish don't worry about things like that very much so I doubt if the Writer's Guild heard much about it. I would, however, like to see those same writers create a fundamentalist Christian preacher named Abe Goldberg and watch the sparks fly (the Lord Mayor of Dublin is, by the way, for the second time in that city's history, Jewish).

The *M*A*S*H* situation is just one more example of writers' talent eclipsed by writers' ignorance. Research is a thing of the past. Writers today care only what the effect of their words is, and any effort beyond that, for grammatical, historical or social accuracy, is rare indeed. In the few instances where effort occurs, it creates a luminous quality as seen in The Paper Chase and many of the PBS presentations. It is occasionally discovered in works such as First Monday in October, written by a genuine playwright and, while a few such examples reach the screen or the tube intact and undiluted by under-educated Hollywood or New York hack writers, tragically, the latter seem to predominate.

The price we pay for suffering such fools is, unfortunately, an endless barrage of misinformation, social distortion and misuse of the language. The next time Diane's writer has her correct Sam's grammar, be skeptical. The odds are with Sam.

Free booklet now available to seniors

A free booklet called "Life Styles for Seniors" is now available to senior citizens from the Park Lane, a retirement center located on the Monterey Peninsula.

The booklet helps seniors to identify their preferred life styles, evaluate financial considerations, and explore housing options, including characteristics to look for in rental retirement communities.

Senior citizens can receive a free copy of "Life Styles for Seniors" by calling 373-0101 or writing The Park Lane, 200 Glenwood Circle, Monterey, CA 93940.

Local singers present duo-recital

Monterey Peninsula College Community Services presents Cathy Findley, mezzo soprano, and Alexander Holodiloff, bass, in the Monterey Peninsula College Music Hall. The concert, which begins at 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 25, features arias, songs and duets by Handel, Brahms, Tchaikowsky, Wagner, DeFalla and others.

The husband-wife singing duo from Pacific Grove will be accompanied by pianists Anatole Leikin and David Spence.

Tickets to the vocal recital can be purchased at the door only, and are $5. Parking is free. For more information, call 646-4051 or 649-0143.

Sentimental journey

AROUND ONE hundred and fifty members of Friends of Monterey Institute of International Studies (MIIS) made a sentimental journey last week.

The reason — an Indian Summer Party held at sunset at the Huntington Estate in Pebble where many local socialites remember attending scores and scores of wonderful parties. Alas and alack, Mrs. Henry E. (Lucille) Huntington decided the estate was a burden so she sold the largest Comstock-designed house in The Forest.

Lucille opened her home and garden for Friends to begin their new year with a tasting of Rouge and Noire Cheese from Petaluma and the velvety wines of Monterey County selected by Chris Armanasco.

T. Scott Moore, Friends president, invited two MIIS students as guests and introduced Michael Gleyze of Pennsylvania, who opted for internatinal studies after trying science. He talked about his six months in Europe and his two years in mainland China.

The second student, Chen (as you all know is the family name) Pi-Chu Pearl, or, as we Americans would say, Pearl Chen, made her first trip away from Taipei, Taiwan to enter MIIS and frankly admitted that she is homesick. She hastened to add, "After I visit home I would like to come back here to work."

Dean John Strolle spoke briefly saying, "Not only does MIIS teach international relations but we practice them as well." He pointed out that MIIS President Robert Guard is in England and William Weber, head of the language department, is in Seoul, Korea as a consultant to the Koreans who chose to handle language translations for Olympiad XXIV themselves. If you remember, MIIS was selected as the official translators for the 1984 games.

Officers, along with second-term president Moore, are Peggy Compton, vice president; Betty Rodden, secretary; Almon Babbitt, treasurer; and Audrey Schrader, membership chairwoman. Friends' next social event is the Christmas Party, Dec. 8th. (So far, the location is a mystery.)

MISSION RANCH Barn in Carmel is a place where people go to let their hair down and to have fun with friends. Last week two parties were held in the barn and both seemed like an old-fashioned block party and a friendly family reunion all rolled into one.

Friends of a local long-time entertainer threw a farewell party for retiring pianist Kay Holman. The ol'-time, long-time Carmel residents were there to wish Kay a happy retirement after her many years of spreading joy with her music. She worked at the Del Monte Lodge for 18 years, the Spindrift for 14, and at the Mission Rance since 1964. That's a lot of music, a lot of good times, a lot of joy.

The Leidigs were there, Glenn, his wife Mariann and his brother Dale. Glenn told me he has been Carmel for 77 years — longer than most people. Only two others have his record beat. Richard Tyler was seen doing some fancy dance steps with Marion Tavernetti, who planned the party with Connie McCloud.

Mrs. Holman, not yet aware that this party was for her, played dance tunes with Barney Laiolo and Edna Lewis. Then Dorothy Schimer took over the keyboard while Charles Cole sang a few ballads.

Before the evening ended guests sang to Kay, "K-K-K-Katy, you're the only girl that we adore," and "Don't be lonesome tonight, try the keyboard and then tell us, Kay, that you're happy tonight."

Everybody was, including Kay Holman.

THE JESTERS of the MP Museum of Art carried out a different theme with their popular Western BBQ "Barnfest." What better place than a barn — The Mission Ranch Barn decorated Wild West-style by that clever Ginny Morrall.

Chefs John and Eileen King fed around 120 cowboys and cowgirls with their delicious barbecued chicken, beans and garlic bread, with homemade pies and cakes for those with a sweet tooth.

Barbara Albright, Barnfest co-chairperson with Al Chapin, won 50 chances on a Toyota car. John King took home the Eldon Dedini drawing and Don Higgins was happy with his Emile Norman-donated work of art.

When you have a barn filled with cowboy chaps, boots, shirts, fringe and Western frills and filled with the music of Gary Rossi for country-western hoedown dancing, it's got to be fun and the MP Museum of Art gets a needed $$$ boost.

Head Jester, Betty Rodden said, "It was a roarin' success both financially and as a party."

OUR FINE local chefs continue to make diners happy all over the Monterey Peninsula. Peter D'Andrea, executive chef at the Carmel Valley Ranch Resort, was chosen by the Wine and Food Society for its annual dinner. Last week 45 "gastronimists" spent an evening at CVRR practicing the art of eating and went home content and happy.

Winding up the hill to the resort one feels relaxation and exhilaration simultaneously. Awaiting in the garden courtyard was a smiling Joseph Lee greeting each and everyone. Then, service of Domaine Chandon Champagne Brut was served with potato pancakes with caviar and smoked salmon canapes and warm wild mushrooms in filo. The welcome was warm and the outdoor heaters were on high, but wools and furs felt comforting.

All organizations have a business to conduct, such as policy and treasurer reports, election of officers, and specific to this gourmet group — the latest news from the sommelier and food committee.

New officers are Dirk van der Burch stepping into the president's post following Dr. Thomas Ainsworth, and Norbert Mirassou as v.p. Herbert Kelley continues as treasurer, as does Lucille Huntington as secretary and Dr. William Snell as sommelier. Joe and Marilee Wandke and Robert and Sarah Bonner were welcomed as new members.

The champagne-warmed members and guests moved inside to dine on superb food and carefully chosen wines served in a leisurely fashion. The invitations, floral arrangements and china designed by Doris Ewing added elegance and atmosphere.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lee were dinner chairpersons and Joe added humor during dinner as the master of ceremonies. Dr. and Mrs. William Snell were co-chairpersons and Bill gave enlightening info on the wines. He also spoke of the "mysterious disappearance of a case of wine" that was quickly replaced with a 1986 Ventana Chenin Blanc (1986), which suited the roast loin of lamb with shiitake mushrooms (for a touch of sweetness), gnocchi and pinot noir sauce.

Seasonal fresh berries with Late Harvest Windsor Sauvignon Blanc 1985 Sonoma was a perfect climax for a perfect dining experience high on a hill in Carmel Valley.

HEINZ GUGGISBERG is back in the Sheraton executive kitchen part time after bypass surgery. Thank goodness he is fine. He was another chef that made a select group of 14 very happy with a luncheon that started with a striking array of sushi in the Monterey Bay Club.

Then, guests were taken to the executive kitchen where decorated tables and Heinz awaited. On the menu: cream of pumpkin soup, mustard salad, sauteed filet of chicken with fresh curry sauce and baby veggies served with wild rice. The appropriate dessert was poached pear framboise on a bed of raspberry coulis and a Ferrante mint with coffee.

Guests were Lynn Traynor, Marie-Therese Taylor, Barbara Whitman, Patricia Griffin, Barbara Brooks, May Waldroup, Fred Rosenlind, Sue Dewar, Artie Early and yours truly. From the Sheraton: Carla Murphy and Tia Gindick (both new additions to the staff), Jeff Brooks and Bob Mikolitch. Carla came from Tulsa to head sales and Tia from Los Angeles via a year in France and Europe to do PR.

KNOWING THAT good food and wine draw the discriminating citizens of the area, Santa Catalina School is holding its seventh annual Wine Tasting and Auction Oct. 8.

This has become one of the most popular events on the crowded social calendar, not only for its lavish buffet and record number of vineyards (25 this time), but because it offers an opportunity to replenish the wine cellar with the knowledge that proceeds go for education.

Along with such outstanding wines as a bottle of 1899 Bordeaux along with dinner for six in the William Stahl residence, there will be a handmade pair of ruffled yellow gold and diamond hoop earrings. The lucky winner of the drawing will receive an Hawaiian vacation for two including airfare and car rental. Wine tasting/buffet at 4:30 and live auction at 7 p.m. both for $35 each. Call 649-1432 to reserve.

ENTRE NOUS:

• The Parade of Nations (PON) celebrates its 20th anniversary by honoring a very special lady, Kitty Ragsdale. Special guests will be graduates of guide dogs school with their animals since the luncheon/barbecue will benefit Guide Dogs for the Blind, one of Kitty's many interests. Setting is Friendship Gardens, Oct. 2.

COMMMUNICATORS TO HOLD LUNCHEON PROGRAM SEPT. 29

Communicators of the Monterey Peninsula (COMP) will hold a luncheon program starting at 11:30 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 29 at the Monterey Beach Hotel. Lunch will be held at noon, with presentation to begin at 12:20. Topic of the day will be "How to Tap the Hispanic Market," presented by Hal Larson and Judy Oates of KSMS-TV.

For information or to make reservations, call Pam Hampton, COMP president, at 899-6209.

KAZU PLANS SPECIAL SHOWS FOR FINAL PLEDGE DRIVE WEEKEND

Special tributes to Ray Charles and the Beatles, and an evening of island music from the Carribean and South Pacific will fill the airwaves when public radio station KAZU-FM concludes its fall fund-raising pledge drive on Sept. 23-25.

The station, which broadcasts at 90.3 FM (90.7 FM on Monterey Peninsula and Santa Cruz cable), provides varied music and public affairs programming to Monterey Bay and Salinas Valley communities from studios in Pacific Grove. The semi-annual pledge drives are major fund-raisers for the station.

The Ray Charles special is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 23, from 9 a.m. to noon, on the Bon Temps Blues show hosted by Mama Roux.

On Saturday, Sept. 24, from 7 p.m. to midnight, the Island Special will be featured. Calypso, soca, zouk, Hawaiian, Tahitian, Samoan and other island music will be the order of the evening.

The Beatles Special, featuring rare recordings and other surprises, as well as all their favorite songs through the years will be aired on Sunday, Sept. 25, from 9 a.m. to midnight. Programmers Jeff Helwig and John Collier, who have extensive private collections of rare and import Beatles material, will be among the hosts for the daylong special.

Nearly 500 individuals became subscribers and pledged more than $23,000 during the first week of the fund-raising drive, said development director Paulette Lynch. The overall goal, however, is $33,000 and KAZU is counting on its listeners to pledge their support. A great number of exciting thank-you gifts will be offered at each subscription level.

Other fund-raising activities planned in coming months include the third "A Tasty Affair" wine and food tasting on Nov. 5 at the Monterey Plaza Hotel, and an Oct. 15 concert at Santa Catalina School in Monterey, featuring New Age/contemporary jazz pianist Sandy Owen.

Free tours offered of observatory

Free tours of the Oliver Observing Station run by the Monterey Institute for Research in Astronomy at Chews Ridge will be offered at 1 and 3 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 9, weather permitting.

Reservations must be made since space is limited. To make a reservation and obtain a map and instructions, call the MIRA office at 375-3220.

Founded in 1972, MIRA is one of very few independent professional observatories in the United States. MIRA's 36-inch telescope, state-of-the-art instrumentation and unusual observatory building combine to permit the rapid acquisition of high-quality data. MIRA astronomers are engaged in a wide range of projects, from the study of the birth, life and death of stars, to comets sweeping through the solar system.

Huntington Witherill exhibit opens

Santa Catalina School will exhibit the photographs of Monterey artist Huntington Witherill from Sept. 26 through Oct. 30 in the foyer of the Sister Mary Kieran Memorial Library.

An opening reception for the artist will take place 7 to 9 p.m. Monday, Sept. 26.

Huntington Witherill has taught photography at institutions and workshops around the country, including the University of California and the Friends of Photography. His images are included in many public, corporate and private collections. Witherill is a member of the board of trustees of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Highlands fire department barbecue set

The Carmel Highlands Volunteer Fire Department has scheduled its fourth annual barbecue, fishing derby and volleyball tournament. All events take place Saturday, Sept. 24 at Monastery Beach, located south of Carmel on Highway 1.

Prizes will be awarded for both the fishing derby and the volleyball tournament. Fishing derby registration is from 6 to 10 a.m. with the barbecue and volleyball tournament starting at 1 p.m.

For more information, call the Carmel Highlands Volunteer Fire Department at 624-2374.

Camp hosts sought for Big Sur coast

State parks along the scenic Big Sur coast have several openings for volunteer camp hosts.

Camp host duties range from greeting visitors and working in a visitor center to helping to operate a campground. Camp hosts must supply their own camping vehicles. Campsites are provided, with hookups for water and power. Each camp host must agree to work 20 hours a week and stay at least two months.

Persons interested in becoming camp hosts may contact State Park Ranger Mark Eikenberry, Big Sur District Office, Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park No. 1, Big Sur, CA 93920, or call 667-2315.

The Carmel Valley Community Center is still accepting applicants for their upcoming chili cook-off slated for 10:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 24 at the center in the valley.

Winner of the chili cook-off will walk away with a $500 first prize. Entry fee is $50. There will also be four live bands, games, other food and refreshments, and more. For more information, or to register for the cook-off call 659-3983.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN TO MEET SEPT. 24

The Democratic Women's Club of Monterey County will meet at 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 24 at the home of Janice and Herman Baker, 26160 Camino Real in Carmel.

Assemblyman Sam Farr, 28th District, will address members on the 1987-88 session of the state Legislature, which has just concluded.

All Democrats, men and women, are invited to attend. For further information call 649-5660 or 484-9777.

TARA O'LEARY FILLS IN AS ACTING DIRECTOR OF MONTEREY COUNTY FILM COMMISSION

Tara O'Leary has been named to fill in as acting director of the Monterey County Film Commission during the upcoming absence of Executive Director Julie Armstrong. Armstrong will be taking maternity leave beginning mid-September.

O'Leary brings a wealth of video and radio experience to her new position with the commission. She has served as host and producer of various television and radio programs in the Sacramento and San Jose areas. Currently she works as evening radio host on KWAV Radio.

During her 10 years in the radio and television business, O'Leary has received several awards including an Emmy Production certificate for a segment produced on "Inside Magazine" at KOVR Television in 1985 and a Silver Plaque at the Intercom '81 Chicago Film Festival for "Tomorrow/Today," a KTEH-TV production.

As acting director of the Monterey County Film Commission, O'Leary will be promoting Monterey County to the film industry and will assist major film and video production companies with projects throughout the county.

Armstrong will return to the position of executive director in early 1989.

All meetings are open to the public. Current chairman is Newton C. Royce, representing 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman. For more information call 424-0753 or 757-5832.

CARMEL WOMAN ENTERS COLUMBIA

Marie M. Mockett of Carmel will enter Columbia College in New York City next month in the most competitive freshman class in the 234-year history of the prestigious Ivy League school. Mockett is a graduate of Robert Louis Stevenson School.

She was chosen to join 850 members of the class of '92 from more than 7,600 applicants, the largest number ever received by the college. So many of its first-choice students decided to attend the school that for the second year in a row Columbia did not use its waiting list, one of the few selective colleges in the country not to do so.

Ninety-five percent of the incoming students ranked in the top fifth of their high school class; 80 percent in the top tenth—both figures the highest ever recorded for any freshman class at Columbia, according to Director of Admissions James T. McMenamin.

SUMMER STUDY FELLOWSHIPS OFFERED BY FOUNDATION

Foreign language teachers in grades seven-12 in Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties have the opportunity to apply for $4,500 summer study fellowships offered by The Rockefeller Foundation. The fellowships are part of a major four-year, $2.1 million program that marks the first time Rockefeller Foundation Fellowships have been awarded to teachers at the secondary level.

The fellowship program will name 100 Rockefeller Fellows in 1989, competitively chosen for outstanding teaching and a commitment to foreign language education. Fellows will each receive the $4,500 stipend for summer study to enhance their knowledge of the country and culture they teach.

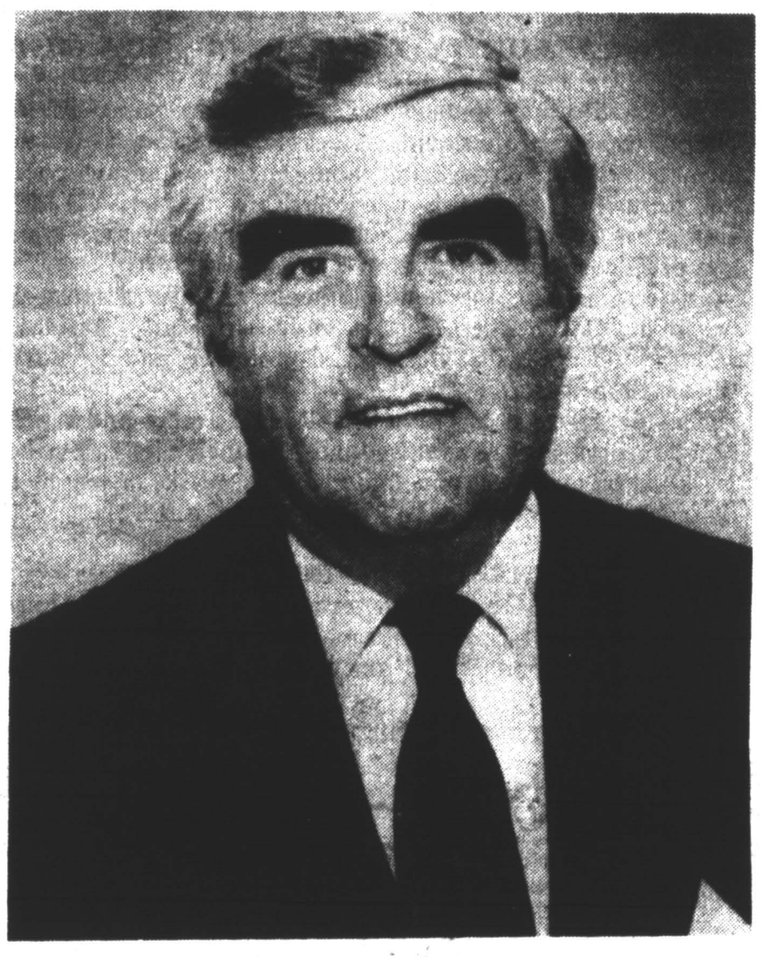
The program will be administered in the tri-county area by Anne Mollet, a Spanish teacher at Santa Catalina School in Monterey, who will disseminate applications to interested teachers and coordinate a local review of applications from a different part of the country. The strongest applications overall will be considered by a national review panel that will meet at the University of Pennsylvania to select the 100 Fellows from the nomination pool.

The fellowships coincide with a nationwide effort to recognize and improve teaching in foreign languages and literatures. "We hope these awards will help encourage bright and intellectually determined people to persist in language teaching," said Richard W. Lyman, president of The Rockefeller Foundation. "We also want to show how important we think individual teachers are in revitalizing America's public and private schools."

Area teachers in grades seven-12 who are interested in applying for the Rockefeller Fellowships can receive further information and an official application from:

Mrs. Anne Mollet, Project Director for the Rockefeller Fellowships
c/o Dean Jon Strolle, Monterey Institute of International Studies
425 Van Buren St.
Monterey, CA 93940

The deadline for submitting completed applications is Oct. 31, 1988.



New chairman

DAN TIBBETS of Carmel, first vice president of Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., Monterey, has been named chairman of a task force which will identify needs and develop funding for future expansion plans for Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. Tibbets has served as a member of the board of directors from 1980 to 1985, is a former president of United Way and former president and director of the Family Services Agency. He is also a director of the Monterey Peninsula Country CLub and treasurer of the Old Capital Club.

STATE ARTS COUNCIL GRANTS OVER $6 MILLION TO ARTS ORGANIZATIONS

Through its Organizational Grants Program, the California Arts Council has awarded $6,480,000 to 556 arts organizations throughout the state.

Robert H. Reid, California Arts Council Director, noted "The continued increase in funding requests reaffirms the tenacity and growth of California's arts organizations."

Grantees from Monterey County included: GroveMont Theatre Arts Center, $4,800; Monterey County Symphony Association, $7,000; Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art (MPMA), $12,000; Youth Music Monterey, $4,000, for a total of $27,800.

small, medium, and large organizations, and to make their programs available to more Californians.

Arts Council grants are decided through a competitive application process. Ten separate peer panels reviewed a total of 706 applications to this program, ranking each on the basis of established criteria. Grants were made only to the highest ranks, with each grantee receiving a percentage of its request.

Grants are made to eligible organizations in one of the following disciplines: dance, interdisciplinary, literature, media, multi-disciplinary arts, music, theater, visual arts, and arts service and presenting organizations.

The deadline for the 1989-90 Organizational Grants Program is Feb. 1, 1989. For an application or information on this and other Arts Council programs, contact the California Arts Council, 1901 Broadway, Suite A, Sacramento, CA 95818; phone (916) 445-1530.

The California Arts Council was established in 1976 to promote artistic awareness and participation in California. It is a state agency which provides grants and technical assistance to artists and to nonprofit arts organizations. Applications are rewiewed and rated at public meetings by outside professional peer panels and receive final approval from the appointed eleven-member council.

CSAA AWARDS FOUR DIAMOND PLAQUE TO CARMEL AREA INNS

The American Automobile Association Four Diamond Award plaque has been presented to the managers of three Carmel area inns. Dean Hanvey of the Adobe Inn-Carmel, Gary Luce of the Carriage House Inn, and Claudia Koehler of the Tickle Pink Motor Inn, were all honored for maintaining establishments which, as California State Automobile Association President A. F. Frederico termed it, "significantly exceed AAA requirements in most physical and operational categories."

Among the 45 counties represented in the CSAA only 78 such awards were distributed. Under the AAA Diamond rating system, accommodations undergo inspections by CSAA field representatives and, if the property meets the state criteria for recommendations, they are assigned an overall rating of one to five diamonds. Only a fifth of the country's establishments meet requirements for recommendation.

CHARTWELL SCHOOL ELECTS BOARD MEMBERS

Chartwell School has just completed a classroom expansion project enabling the facility to accommodate increased enrollment. A tour, including observation of the multi-sensory teaching method, may be arranged by calling the school.

Chartwell's new board of directors, elected at its annual meeting, are: Harvey Kilpatrick of Carmel, president; Betsy Shea of Carmel Valley, vice president and financial officer; Judy Lewis of Carmel, secretary; Nicki McMahan of Pebble Beach, chairman. Continuing Board members include Sue Dewar, Dr. Jim Flippen, John King, Jennefer Santee, and Ione Strum.

Chartwell offers the Central Coast's only full-time educational program for individuals with dyslexia and language disabilities.

CARMEL BACH FESTIVAL ATTENDANCE SUPPORTED

In 1988, the Carmel Bach Festival Board of Directors made available to business leaders a limited number of group tickets to the festival at a discounted rate. Those tickets set aside for this purpose were to be distributed to deserving persons who might otherwise be unable to attend or to the employees of those businesses who participated.

Design Professionals Insurance Co. and Christopher Weil both asked the festival to distribute their tickets to needy groups. Among those groups that benefited were Gateway Center for the Retarded, the Carmel Foundation and the Alliance on Aging. John Mahoney Co. and California Insurance Agencies distributed their tickets to their employees.

This is the first year the Carmel Bach Festival offered group tickets at a discounted rate and is in keeping with the festival's goal in making the music of the festival available to as wide an audience as possible.

MONTEREY COUNTY CHAPTER OF THERAPISTS FORMED

The California Association of Marriage and Family Therapists, a professional association dedicated to the advancement of marriage and family therapy, has announced the formation of its Monterey County chapter. CAMFT establishes and maintains high standards of professional ethics and practice for its members.

Officers serving the new Monterey County chapter are president, Jane Ellerbe; vice-president, Marie Diridoni; secretary, Diane Baker; treasurer, Connie Yee; and newsletter editor, Francis Berry.

This new chapter has been established to serve and benefit both the professionals in the county and their clients. Further information may be obtained by calling 625-0184 or writing to Suite 204, 3785 Via Nona Marie, Carmel, CA 93923.

MADD CHAPTER SEEKING VOLUNTEERS

The Monterey County Chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving is looking for volunteers to serve as MADD victim assistants among other positions in the organization. MADD victim assistance volunteers donate three hours a week offering advice and support to families victimized by drunk drivers, through the court process and beyond.

Volunteers are also needed to type letters and enter computer data as well as to write and edit articles for the newsletter and speak at schools and club meetings. If you're looking for a job, but lack office skills, MADD can give you valuable training and experience.

For more information, call either 758-MADD or 372-MADD.

AAA AWARDS FOUR-DIAMOND PLAQUES TO LOCAL HOTELS

Raymond Theus, manager of the California State Automobile Association (AAA) Monterey District office, presented the AAA Four-Diamond Award plaque for 1988 to Csaba Ajan, manager of the Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley and to Eric Calderon, manager of the Del Monte Lodge in Pebble Beach.

Other peninsula properties given the award included the Hotel Pacific, the Monterey Plaza, and the Spindrift Motel, all in Monterey.

According to CSAA President A.F. Federico, a Four Diamond Rating is awarded only to those exceptional properties which "significantly exceed AAA requirements in most physical and operational categories." There were only 78 such awards this year throughout the entire 45 counties of Northern and Central California and the State of Nevada, which comprise CSAA's service territory.

Under the AAA Diamond rating system, accommodations undergo rigorous inspections by CSAA's qualified field representatives and, if the property meets the state criteria for recommendations, they are then assigned an overall rating of 1 to 5 Diamonds.

The higher ratings are an indication of the degree to which basic standards are exceeded. Federico noted "only a fifth of the properties in the country meet the Triple A's requirements for recommendation. It should also be noted that even a One Diamond signifies a quality establishment," Federico concluded.

Subaru Wagon best-selling wagon in United States

IT'S OFFICIAL — in the 1987 calendar year, the Subaru Wagon was America's best retail-selling wagon, import or domestic! With retail sales over the 75,000 mark, it has sold 7,000 more than its nearest competitor.

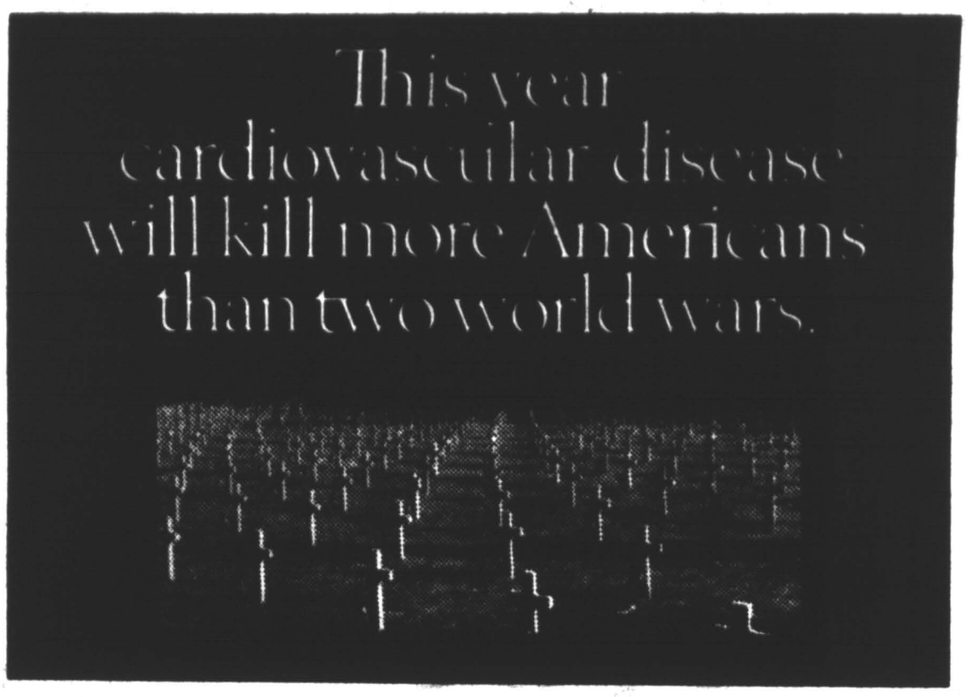
In addition, as of July 1, 1987 there were more Subaru 4-Wheel-Drive Station Wagons on the road than all other 4WD station wagons combined. These statistics were recently verified by R.L. Polk and Co., an independent organization which tracks automobile registrations across the country.

The Subaru Wagon's leadership is also evident among 4-Wheel-Drive competitors. As of July 1, 1987, there were 596,788 4-Wheel-Drive Station Wagons on American roads; 339,684 of them were Subaru 4WD Wagons — that's 57 percent of the market.

The Subaru Wagon first achieved its present sales success in 1980 when it took over the position of number one import wagon from Toyota. Since then Subaru has consistently sold more station wagons than any other import car company. In 1987, excluding fleet sales, Subaru sold more wagon models than any other car company in America.

Before ever attaining such sales volumes, the Subaru established itself as the first production 4WD passenger car sold in America, more than 13 years ago. In a "perfect match" promotion, the Subaru Wagon became the official car of the U.S. Ski Association. Since then it has become associated with skiers everywhere, and most recently, the Subaru Wagon was named the Official Car of the U.S. Cycling Federation.

Subaru of America is unique in the auto industry — it's the country's only American-owned and publicly owned import automobile company. Headquartered in Cherry Hill, N.J., just outside Philadelphia, the firm markets Subaru vehicles throughout the United States, its territories and the Caribbean through a network of 12 regional areas and over 800 Subaru dealers.



Nearly one million Americans will die of heart attacks, strokes and other cardiovascular diseases this year. That's more than were killed in World War I and II combined. But you can reduce your risk of cardiovascular disease by eating a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet, controlling your blood pressure, and not smoking. Do it now. Because in the battle against cardiovascular disease, it may be do or die.

THE BMW M5. A NICE, PRACTICAL 150-MPH FAMILY SEDAN.

A Formula One race car may be a bit faster, perhaps, but it doesn't carry five people anywhere nearly as comfortably.

We're referring to the new M5, automotive brainchild of BMW's elite Motorsport Division. A sedan whose hand-built 256-hp engine can rocket you from 0-60 in a scant 6.7 seconds.

Yet despite such credentials, the M5 "is just as happy being driven leisurely or in dense traffic" (Road & Track).

Which suggests that those seeking ultra-high performance visit us for a test drive. Accompanied, of course, by the rest of the lucky family.

OBITUARIES

John L. Burroughs

Private funeral services took place for John L. Burroughs of Pebble Beach, who died Aug. 21 in his home. He was 73.

Born Feb. 20, 1915 in Water Valley, Ky., he moved to Pebble Beach from Birmingham, Ala., three months ago.

Self-employed as the president of Universal Publicizer's, a radio and television advertising firm, Burroughs is listed in Who's Who in Finance and Industry. He was also a life member of the Navy League and a member of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

Survivors include his wife, Sandy of Pebble Beach, and a brother, Lenward of Birmingham, Ala.

Following cremation at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, his remains were scattered at sea. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the donor's favorite charity.

Frances Townsend

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, for Frances Dew Townsend, a resident of Carmel and Pebble Beach for 48 years, who died Aug. 23 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital. She was 93.

Born July 21, 1895 in West Point, Va., she moved to Carmel in 1940 with her husband, Col. George Townsend. They lived in Pebble Beach from 1945 to 1975. Mrs. Townsend moved to Carmel after Col. Townsend's death in 1975.

Survivors include two daughters, Wayland Stone Dudley of Rancho Palos Verdes and Mary Ellen Schermerhorn of Carmel; four grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; and one great-great-grandchild.

Inurnment took place at Rock Creek Cemetery, Washington, D.C. At Mrs. Townsend's request, there were no services. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the donor's favorite charity.

Robert Park Beebe

Cremation took place at Monterey City Cemetery, for Robert Park Beebe of Carmel, a naval architect and retired Navy captain, who died Aug. 19 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 78.

Born Nov. 21, 1909 in Manila, the Philippines, he graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1931 and was trained as an aviator. He served as navigational officer aboard the USS Saratoga in the Pacific during World War II.

He later taught strategy and tactics at the Naval War College in Newport, R.I., and received a bachelor's degree from Boston University. He was superintendent of the Navy Line School at the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey for four years. He retired in 1961 and settled in Carmel.

He received international recognition as a naval architect and designed a new class of motor sailors called Passagemakers. After building the original Passagemaker in Singapore, and extensive cruising, he wrote a book titled "Voyaging under power."

Survivors include his wife, Linford Donovan Beebe; a daughter, Lucy Cresap Beebe of Fernandina Beach, Fla.; a stepdaughter, Gael Donovan of Carmel; and two grandchildren.

Mission Mortuary was in charge of arrangements. Inurnment, with full military honors, took place at Rosecrans National Cemetery in San Diego.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the intensive care unit at Community Hospital.

Ellen Cunningham

Rosary was recited Aug. 15 at Carmel Mission Basilica, and a mass of Christian burial was celebrated Aug. 16 at the church, for Ellen Mary Cunningham of Carmel, who died Aug. 12 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. She was 70.

Born April 23, 1918 in Europe, Mrs. Cunningham, who was known as Paula, grew up in Carmel and moved to San Francisco in 1945. She returned to live in Carmel in 1962.

She worked as clerk and manager of the Carmel Mission gift shop for 17 years, was a tax preparer for H & R Block and Tostevin Associates and taught piano at the Gilbert Boyer Institute in Carmel.

Her memberships included Carmel Mission Basilica.

Survivors include a daughter, Stephanie Whitehead of Monterey; a brother, Walter Olsen of New York City; and two sisters, Mary Hamblin of Port Townsend, Wash., and Mabel Wallace of Sooke, British Columbia.

Burial took place at San Carlos Cemetery. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Florence L. Beard

Florence Luella Beard, a past president of the Carmel Foundation, died Aug. 3 at her home in Carmel. She was 91.

Born Nov. 19, 1896 in Oroville, she moved to Carmel in 1966. She began her career in education as a science teacher at a girls school in Piedmont. In 1953, she helped found the Crystal Springs School in San Mateo, and after four years there left to become the headmistress of Girls Collegiate School in Claremont.

When Miss Beard retired, she moved to Carmel where she became active as a member of the board of the Carmel Foundation. As president of the foundation, she oversaw expansion of its projects and activities.

The foundation recently announced it would name a new resident facility in her memory.

Survivors include two brothers, Dr. William Beard of Long Beach; the Rev. Robert Beard of Redding; three sisters, Doris of Woodland, Emily Horton of Los Angeles, Mary Henderson of Marysville; and 22 nieces and nephews.

Memorial services were scheduled for a later date.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Carmel Foundation.

John Francis Doud

The rosary was recited Sept. 5 at Carmel Mission Basilica, and a Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated there Sept. 6, for John Francis Doud, a descendant of a pioneer Monterey family and a Monterey County cattle rancher, who died Sept. 2 at his Carmel home. He was 93.

Born Jan. 7, 1895 in Monterey, he followed the family tradition and worked as a youngster on cattle drives from Monterey to King City. His grandfather, Francis, was sergeant-at-arms at the state constitutional convention in Monterey in 1849.

After serving in the Army during World War I, he returned to Monterey County and operated cattle ranches in Big Sur, Greenfield and King City. He is noted for establishing a notable Hereford herd.

Survivors include a son, John of King City; a daughter, Mimi Detels of Los Angeles; and six grandchildren. His wife, Berenice Pritchard Doud, died in 1976.

The Mission Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Lillian Reese Foster

Memorial services took place Sept. 12 at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel, for Lillian Reese Foster, 83, who died Sept. 8 at the hospice of Monterey Peninsula.

Born Sept. 19, 1904 in Chicago, she lived in Lexington, Ky., Burlingame and Delray Beach, Fla., before moving to Carmel 21 years ago with her late husband, Thomas G. Foster Jr.

Throughout her life she had a love and an appreciation of fine music and expressed her talents as a classical pianist, both as a soloist and accompanist, and as member of various church choirs.

A member of All Saints' in Carmel, she sang in the choir and was active in the life of the parish during her years here. She was also a volunteer at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula for 10 years as she had been at Bethesda Memorial Hospital in Delray Beach, Fla., prior to her return to California.

Survivors include two sons, Thomas G. Foster, III of Ashland, Ore. and Rowland R. Foster of Burlingame; six grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial contributions to All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel, the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, or to a charity of the donor's choice.

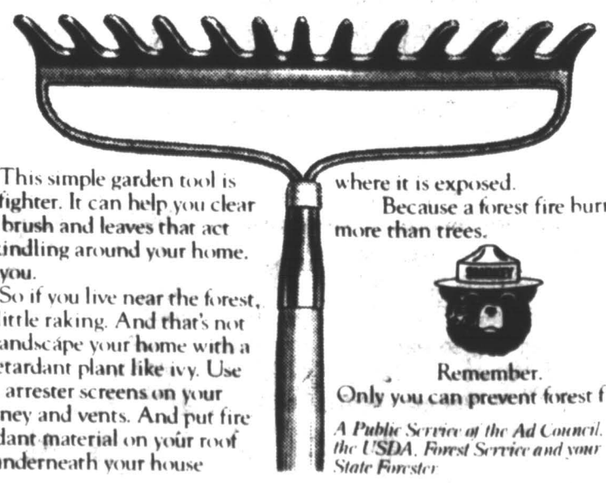
Like a good neighbor. State Farm is there.

HOW THIS RAKE CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE.


This simple garden tool is a firefighter. It can help you clear away brush and leaves that act like kindling around your home. And you.
So if you live near the forest, do a little raking. And that's not all. Landscape your home with a fire retardant plant like ivy. Use spark arrester screens on your chimney and vents. And put fire retardant material on your roof and underneath your house where it is exposed.
Because a forest fire burns more than trees.

Rev. J.C. Brown to retire

Ordained to the Christian ministry in 1946, the Rev. James Clark Brown, minister of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula for the past 8 years, will preach his final sermon before retirement, Sunday, Sept. 25 at the 10:30 a.m. worship service.

Brown, age 66, indicated his intention of retiring last January so as to enable the church to have a continuing leadership of ministry. The church has since called both an interim preaching minister, Dr. Eugene Sill, former professor of preaching at the Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley and an associate-interim minister, The Rev. Richard Darksmith.

An honor graduate of the Yale Divinity School, New Haven and of Phillips University in Okla., Brown holds standing in The United Church of Christ while serving the non-denominational Community Church which is celebrating its 25th anniversary. He has served on the staff of two members of Congress and by appointment of the late Speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn, he was an administrative assistant to the U.S. Congress with the responsibility for reporting the legislative action of the House of Representative Committees for the Congressional Record Digest.

Brown came to the Carmel Valley church in September 1980, following a 15-year pastorate at the historic First Congregational Church in downtown San Francisco. Mayor Dianne Feinstein declared a citywide day in his honor in recognition of the ministry performed by that church in meeting human need.

Brown has served previous pastorates in New Haven, Los Angeles, Washington D.C. and has been guest preacher at various colleges including Yale, Vassar, Stanford, Penn State and the Riverside Church in New York City. He has been active in The New Forum, a community peace program, civic clubs and the Monterey Peninsula Clergy Association.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Repaying debts

Carmel Pine Cone
Sept. 28, 1978

O Almighty and eternal Father in heaven, creator of the universe, look down upon us in mercy and be pleased to show us how great is the call to serve. May we share in the mission of thy son who gave his all in the service of all.

My Polish-American versifier Joe Pojakowski, Grandma Moses of greeting card poetry, writes, "One debt outshines the rest, it's one we must repay. It's that of being cheerful towards others every day."

Lord, since we're called to cheer souls downcast and in the dumps, make us ever cheerful Lord, so that servicing man triumphs. Finally make us remember, Lord, that sympathy is never trusted except when we heap it upon ourselves.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

For 26 years Commid J. Briewer had gone to the Cal-Neva Club in Reno, Nevada, to eat breadfast and to play the slots. On a recent Sunday, the 61-year-old concrete contractor ate the club's special 99-cent breakfast with his 81-year-old father-in-law, then played about $20 before he hit four sevens, winning the jackpot: $6,814,823. How does in feel ot be an instant millionaire? "Pretty good," said Brewer.

The Saturday Blues

THEY PUT the party back into the Saturday afternoon blues show at the just-concluded 31st Annual Monterey Jazz Festival.

The blues show — known to festival veterans as the best get-down-and-party show of the weekend event — had been suffering from a general malaise as of late, with lackluster shows and weak lineups. All that changed Saturday when the arena was reelin' and rockin' like it used to, thanks to keyboardist Mark Naftalin, who produced the show.

Naftalin, a veteran of the white Chicago blues scene in the '60s as keyboard player for the Paul Butterfield Blues Band, got the show off to a rousing start, adding a raucous version of Rufus Thomas' classic Walkin' the Dog before he brought out Rufus' daughter, soul singer Carla Thomas and singer-guitarist Maurice McKinnies.

Backed by Naftalin and his Blue Monday Band, Thomas and McKinnies strolled through a handful of soul songs, including a dandy version of When Something's Wrong With My Baby, and of course, Thomas performed her big mid-'60s hit, B-A-B-Y.

Katie Webster, "The Swamp Boogie Queen," went solo on piano and vocals, but the immense stage and restive audience tended to minimize her otherwise swinging performance. She's the type of performer you want to see in a small nightclub where the intimacy gives her more power and presence.

Saturday's show didn't kick into high gear until Queen Ida and her Bon Temps Zydeco Band stormed the stage. It's been several years since Queen Ida has made an appearance at the festival and she made the most of it, mixing in infectious zydeco with a little blues, rock 'n' roll and even some jazz thrown in to spice up the stew. She was joined later by accordionist Rockin' Sidney (My Toot-Toot) and her brother Al Rapone, and they proceeded to tear up the joint, pushing the crowd into a frenzy with the finale, The Saints Go Marchin' In.

In fact, as the curtains drew to a close the cheers and screams for more totally drowned out emcee and festival general manager Jimmy Lyons, who tried gamely (and lamely) to go on with a spiel about what a great afternoon it was turning out to be (no kidding?). If there was an encore deserved last weekend, it surely should have been then.

(Another encore was botched Sunday evening when Lyons tried to bring phenomenal vocalist Dianne Shuur back for a curtain call, but his pleas either fell on deaf ears or he wasn't forceful enough in his entreaties. She simply left the stage!)

With the crowd thus whipped into a festive frenzy, it was up to Albert Collins and his Icebreakers to keep them there. And he did. Collins was coming off a monster jam at the previous weekend's San Francisco Blues Festival, where he joined forces with guitarists Elvin Bishop and Donald Kinsey, as well as Katie Webster, to bring that two-day event to an appropriate close.

Collins' guitar was slashing and biting as usual, his fine backup band — which includes a trumpet and two sax players — pushing the propulsive beat ever higher. Collins plays a kind of hybrid Texas-Chicago blues, mostly uptempo and always power-packed. By the time Collins went into his famous finale — going into the audience to play trailing a long extension cord — the entire arena was on its collective feet yelling its fool head off.

Collins could have also played a few more tunes and nobody would have minded in the least bit, but the show must go on, which means you can't burn out the audience for the Saturday evening show to follow.

If he continues to put together shows like Saturday's, Mark Naftalin should never have to give up the reins. Now if we could just get someone to put together as strong a show for the rest of the weekend, we'd have something. The weekend had its moments of brilliance, but the lowlights outnumbered the high. But it was great to see the Saturday afternoon show back on track and chugging along nicely.

HOT TICKETS:

• Last Temptation of Christ opened at the Carmel Village Theater last Friday to little fanfare and less controversy. Nevertheless, the Red Badge of Courage award to theater owners John Harris and Alan Weber for bringing this significant film to town. Stick to your guns, guys.

• Robert Cray's latest, Don't Be Afraid of the Dark. Even non-blues fans can get into this one. A smoky mixture of blues and Stax/Memphis soul, with both Cray's smooth vocals and fluid guitar leading the way. At your friendly neighborhood record store.

• Second Annual Cajun & Zydeco Festival, Oct. 8-9, Pier 3, Fort Mason. More zydeco and Cajun music (watch out, it's coming on strong). Michael Doucet and Beausoleil, Dewey Balfa, Danny Poullard, Al Rapone, Lawrence "Black" Ardoin and His French Band, The Sundogs, etc. etc. With Cajun and Creole cuisine and dance and music workshops. Cajun Hotline: (415) 548-6149.

We all know that animals of all kinds bring us lots of joy into our lives. The SPCA Monterey County, a Humane Society, is holding an event to prove that animals do indeed bring us joy. The Sunday Champagne Brunch is set for October 9, 1988, at the beautiful Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley. This fundraiser for the SPCA Shelter will feature fashions and animals in a gala show with designer built domestic domiciles being auctioned following brunch and the fashion show. Admission to this special event is only $50 per person. Tickets can be obtained through the Community Relations office of The SPCA.
The SPCA of Monterey County, The Carmel Pine Cone, The Pacific Grove Monarch as well as the merchants on this page present this monthly feature. Visit the SPCA Shelter, 1002 Monterey/Salinas Hwy. across from the Laguna Seca Recreation Area entrance, Monday thru Friday, 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. or Weekends, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

PLEASE NOTE: Pictured animals are subject to prior adoption or return to owner. Adoptions are to qualified homes only. If these animals have been adopted, there are other adorable animals in the shelter. Come on out! Call 373-2631 for additional information.

Dave Brubeck Quartet swings with county symphony

THE DAVE BRUBECK Quartet will join the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra in a concert set Saturday, Sept. 24 at Sherwood Hall in Salinas. The Quartet includes Brubeck, his son Chris on electric bass and trombone, Randy Jones on drums and Bill Smith on clarinet.

Born in Concord in 1920, Dave Brubeck intended to follow his father's career as a rancher and cowboy, but his mother, a piano teacher, insisted on some musical education. He graduated from the University of the Pacific at Stockton with a major in music.

After World War II, Brubeck went to Mills College in Oakland to study composition with the French composer, Darius Milhaud. It was Milhaud who persuaded the young Brubeck to seek a dual career in both jazz and composition.

Brubeck's musical interests encompass everything from his well-known jazz pieces, such as "The Duke" and "Blue Rondo a la Turk," to ballet and symphonic composition. More recently, he has become interested in comtemporary sacred music, composing such works as The Light in the Wilderness, for chorus and orchestra, and To Hope! A Celebration, a mass in the revised ritual.

At the Saturday concert, which begins at 8 p.m., the audience may expect symphonic arrangements of Brubeck's jazz works, as well as excerpts from his larger compositions.

Maestro Clark Suttle of the Monterey County Symphony will conduct the first half of the performance, while Brubeck's conductor, Russell Gloyd, will conduct the second. The program will be orchestral, but Brubeck's jazzier side, for which he is most famous, will be evident in the participation of his Quartet.

The Monterey County Symphony is supported in part by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the California Arts Council, and the Monterey County Cultural Council.

THE DAVE Brubeck Quartet is comprised of (standing, from left), Randy Jones, Chris Brubeck, Bill Smith, and seated, Dave Brubeck. They will perform in concert Saturday, Sept. 24 with the Monterey County Symphony. The 8 p.m. concert will be presented at Sherwood Hall in Salinas. Tickets are $15. For information or reservations, call 624-8511.

Gemstones, crystal and mineral lore shared during show and sale

THE DOORS ARE due to open Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 24-25 for the 29th annual Monterey Gem and Mineral Show. Show hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, at the Monterey Fairgrounds.

New among the displays at the 1988 show will be a table devoted to fossils. A jeweler specializing in gold wire designs will custom make jewelry to buyers' specifications right at the show.

Special mineral specimens to round out a collection can be found, and a local dealer will show how faceting is done, as well as selling machines for faceting and making cabochons. Other ongoing demonstrations will include sphere-making and silver engraving.

Among other things, information will be available on the scholarship awarded annually by the Carmel Valley Gem and Mineral Society.

For children, there will be a perennial favorite—grab bags filled with polished stones. Many of the grab bags contain gold stones which can be exchanged for prizes. Hourly door prizes will be awarded, with typical prizes including necklaces, pendants, belt buckles, bookends and gem trees.

The Monterey Gem and Mineral Show invites all to browse among the colorful exhibits, shop at the dealers' tables, and sit down for lunch at the snack bar. The show is located in the Monterey Room of the Monterey Fairgrounds.

There will be wheelchair access to this event. A donation of $1.50 will be requested at the door.

ARTS & LEISURE

BRAD COLE photographed "Lexa and Jason" in Los Angeles. Cole and Dick Garrod will teach a one-day workshop in black and white photography from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 24. Presented by the Photographic Center in Carmel, the workshop will consist of presentations, discussion and demonstration of basic topics — determining film speeds and times, controlling contrast, print manipulation, archival processing and more. Fee is $50. To register, call 625-5181.

Center arranges autumn activities

The Fall Carmel-by-the-Sea recreation brochure is now available. The brochure features the activities and classes sponsored by the department through December.

Activities for preschoolers, youth and adults are planned. Something new for the younger set includes a series of arts and crafts classes and workshops. The Autumn Apple Workshop for children 4 to 7-years-old features a morning of cooking and craft activities using apples. This class will be held on Saturday, Sept. 24.

Another new preschool program, Let's Make Music, provides an opportunity for the three and one-half to five-year-old to make musical instruments, listen to a variety of music then create music together. In addition to the several new programs the familiar favorites including dance are scheduled.

For school-aged children the ballet program on Tuesday and Thursday afternoon continues throughout the fall. For those with an interest in the arts, painting and drawing and art history classes are planned. In the painting and drawing class students will learn a variety of techniques that stress line, texture, form, space and color. This program runs four weeks beginning Oct. 6 on Thursday afternoons.

In art history students will have the opportunity to recreate the styles of famous artists through drawing and painting projects. This class provides a fun way for students to explore classical art. Art history runs four weeks on Tuesday afternoons beginning Oct. 4.

For a complete listing of all recreation activities, pick up a copy of the 1988 Fall Recreation Brochure. They can be found at the Recreation Dapartment, Fourth Avenue and Torres Street, City Hall and Harrison Library.

For more information on fall activities call 626-1255.

Third Chili Cook-off tempts tasters in Valley

A HOT, ZESTY day awaits chili lovers everywhere as the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center prepares for its Third Annual Great Chili Cook-off on Saturday, Sept. 24. Hours are 10:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. at the Community Center Park on Ford Road in the Village.

Anyone can enter a team to compete for the grand prize of $500 or for the second and third prizes of $200 and $100 respectively.

For non-cooking chili affectionados, many cauldrons filled with mighty fine, freshly prepared chili will be available for public tasting, some very hot, hot, hot!

Foot tapping music will be provided by such enduring favorites as Jake Stock and the Abalone Stompers, Eddie Graham, the Young Presidents and Pat Malone.

There also will be swimming for adults and children in the Community Center pool, volleyball for the more energetically inclined, horseshoes, games for children, and an assortment of clowns, jugglers as well as a dunk-tank for the amusement of all. Plenty of food and drinks will round this special family day.

For entry forms for the Great Chili Cook-Off or for more information, call Louise Riddell-Kaufman at 659-3983 weekday mornings.

ART NOTES

By Sam Colburn

The curious village

THE POSITION OF Carmel in the world of art is curious. In the beginning there were a number of artists who came here, lured no doubt by the fact that the area between Carmel and the Big Sur was thought of as being the greatest meeting of land and sea in the world. Among them were artists like Armin Hansen; Francis McComas; his wife, Gene Francis McComas; William Ritschel; John O'Shea; George and Catherine Seideneck, and William Watts, among others. None of these people lived in Carmel proper except John O'Shea in his later years. After all, the city is only about one square mile in size. It was known as an art colony, and now there are dozens of galleries but not many of them show the work of local artists.

One of the exceptions is the Carmel Art Association. They have a rule, or did at one time, that the members had to live within 10 miles of the gallery. We do have many artists here who possess original imagery. The big name artists do not come here often except possibly for art workshops. The Fireside Gallery exhibits the watercolor painting of Millard Sheets, however, and he is well known nationally. Years ago Fernand Leger taught for about a week at John Cunningham's Carmel Art Institute, and Salvador Dali came at the invitation of Samuel F. B. Morse. He painted the ceiling of the Bali Room at the old Del Monte Hotel for the annual Artists Ball.

ONE ARTIST, Noel Mapstead, who was born in Carmel, has returned to this area. He recently had a show at the Pacific Grove Art Center, and is now exhibiting at the Carl Cherry Foundation which is at Guadalupe and Fourth Avenue in Carmel. I think of him as a conceptual artist. This is not a true definition as those of that approach only visualize. I remember going to an exhibit of conceptual art which consisted of a typewritten sheet for each artist in which the image was described.

Getting back to Mapstead, may I say that he has some interesting solutions to problems of space, but I do not get any feeling coming out of the canvas. It all seems like a splendid, cerebral exercise. His paint quality is purposely unimportant, I think his titles are dandy, but I don't get the connection with the painting. The important thing is his freshness of eye.

OVER AT SITE 311 Robert Kvenild is showing his sculpture. Most of the pieces are ceramic, but he has several in metal, and two in wood. In the first medium he creates not only brilliant, imaginary flowers, but also the vases that hold them. I especially liked "The Blue Surfer." The sculptures in metal are assemblages. "Branciforte, No. 16," consists of pieces of farm machinery in bright red. "Cowboys and Poodles" is done in paint-washed wood. The other work in that medium consists of a great assortment of shapes of Polynesian origin. This exhibit lasts through Sept. 28.

BESIDES THEIR regular monthly show, the Carmel Art Association is hosting three one-man shows in one room. The artists involved are Keith Lindberg, Brenda Morrison and Suzanne Sable. This is a new Lindberg, or, at least, one that I have not seen before. These are large works on white paper done with two colors of Conte crayon and compressed charcoal. When you first look, it appears that these are long, flowing forms, which they are, but the heads and shoulders of ladies are part of the organic whole. In one of the pieces the composition begins again coming into the picture from the right as if it was on a revolving drum.

All of these oils by Brenda Morrison have umbrellas in them. Her painting is becoming more complicated. "Fine Roses and White Wicker" has a tipsy look, perhaps due to the slant of the umbrella and the diagonals of the tablecloth. Design is especially important in "Roses, Delphiniums and Apricots." There is a subtlety of nuance which is new, and I find the gradation of color quite fascinating in some of the pieces.

The sculpture of Suzanne Sable has become simpler and, at the same time, more complex. "Mother Teresa" combines the massive and the delicate. She is cradling a frail plant. Her angular "Pelican" is fun. Three of these pieces are animal mothers and children. "Sweet Talk" is a mare and her foal, and is quite tender. Form within form is shown in "Love in a Jungle."

This exhibit at the art association will be on view through Oct. 5.

THE PACIFIC GROVE Art Center offers five one-person shows. One is a "Retrospective for a Living Legend" which is all about Alexander G. Weygers, a very productive genius. He is a sculptor, wood engraver, blacksmith, author, inventor, photographer, teacher and mechanical engineer. He carves directly in stone or wood, using tools that he has made himself. His forms in sculpture are quite free, and the masses smooth and flowing.

I like his "Red Marble Torso." He is not often satirical, but "Virginia Man," a bronze with patina, seems to be repressing a smirk. "Mother and Child" is a large sculpture in wood. The head of a young girl is simple and straightforward. The figures in many pieces seem to melt one into the other as in "Death's Embrace." The portrait of his father, which may have been done early in his career, indicates a rather dour man. His engravings are done with wood blocks. He cut down the tree, cured the wood, and incised the block. He also designed an alphabet with an interesting decor around each letter. He must have spent time in the South Seas as there are engravings of native women. It is fascinating to study his design for a flying saucer, and for which he holds a patent. It is called a Discopter. He conceived this in 1944, and one wonders if some of the sightings of recent years resulted from his concepts in this field.

Mary Balzer Buskirk's weavings are on the walls of the same gallery. I am not very knowledgeable in this field, but I think she has amazing textures and is sensitive to her subject matter. There are landscapes and abstracts. She does, on occasion, use paint directly on the fabric. There are no titles, but the adjoining works are obviously orchards. One of the hangings is implanted with real oats. Her variety is great.

Lester Lee is the artist whose watercolors hang on the halls. He is an orthodox painter, but the work has the freshness of the land from which it is derived. May I mention "The Last Three Minutes of Sun." The declining rays illuminate the warm hills. "The Old Gas Pump" is a splendid subject. This is the open Western landscape, and Lee has a feeling for it.

A woman by the name of Jeanne Truax shows her watercolors in the Elmarie Dyke Gallery. These are very free, but very graphic. They are completely abstract. There is a free-flowing of pigment combined with controlled line. I like "Single Scene." "Cleo in the Violets" is complex, but holds together. "Spring Shot" is mysterious and delicate. The paintings on the rear wall are done in mixed media. Look for "Kalaidescope."

The photographic gallery at the P.G. Art Center is also exhibiting "Daydreams in Miniature" by H.J. Taylor. These are called sculpted assemblages. The base of each piece is a seashell with a tiny face embedded in it. Each assemblage has a poem, and a printed text near the door informs you that the content is derived from the conjurings of Homer and Ovid among others.

These five shows will continue through Oct. 15.

Except for a few galleries the flow of schlock continues unimpeded in Carmel. There is a new organization called the Carmel Gallery Association which I feel will attempt to sponsor freshness of imagery. The word commercial denotes "run of the mill" art. This is an unfortunate connotation of the term as most artists want to sell their work. If you do sell, then you are engaged in commerce.

Seniors receive free health checks

Free health check-ups for older adults are offered by the SCANS (Senior Citizen and Nursing Services) program of the Monterey County Health Department. Persons over age 55 are eligible.

Appointments are required for the screenings, which are offered in Carmel at the Presbyterian Church; in Pacific Grove at the community center and in New Monterey at the New Monterey Neighborhood Center.

To schedule an appointment, call 899-8100.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joanne Tenenbaum

'Evening in Black and White' bows at MPC

AN EVENING in Black and White, currently in performance at Monterey Peninsula College's SRO Theater, is a modest two-part evening. Part one, a combination of dance, songs and monologues on the topic of being black in white America, is strongest in the monologues, but needs tightening in the connecting material. Part two is a riveting performance of LeRoi Jones' Dutchman, a taut one-act written in the sixties that plays out the usually unspoken fears and hostilities skittering beneath the surface of black and white civilized behavior.

Two monologues spoken by Victoria Johnson, "A Black Woman Speaks" and "Ms. Mae," are the substance that holds part one together. Beah Richards' "A Black Woman Speaks" is a straightforward historical lecture defining the status of "white womanhood" as slavery ("If they counted my teeth, they did appraise your thigh"), chastising white women for failing even to realize they were enslaved, and accusing them of looking down on their black sisters instead of joining with them to fight against their mutual enslavement ("You cuddled down in your pink slavery and thought somehow my slavery confirmed your superiority").

AN EXTENSIVE cast brings to life An Evening in Black and White in the SRO Theatre at Monterey Peninsula College. The production incorporates songs, monologues, dance and a one-act play, Dutchman, by LeRoi Jones. Final performances are set 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Sept. 22-24.

"A Black Woman Speaks" is the kind of powerful material that tempts an actress to overplay. But Victoria Johnson is in expert control of it, beginning with a reflective tone that builds in emotional intensity along with her argument and culminates in a soul-weary numbness we can almost feel with her.

James Levasseur's extremely white rationalization of segregation, a monologue from Raisin in the Sun, rounds out the black and white picture and is delivered in appropriately patronizing, self-serving fasion. (Here, and in Dutchman, Levasseur does a nice job of conveying the button-down soul.)

This insincere speech and an integrated rendition of "Amazing Grace" precede Victoria Johnson's second monologue, Joan Micklin Silver's "Ms. Mae." At seventy-two going on seventy-three, Ms. Mae is a graceful assemblage of superficial compromises, built, however, on a solid foundation of clarity. Johnson's Ms. Mae is a delightful old woman, worldly yet strong in her faith, who tells with some relish a 59th Street morality tale of the high price of insincerity.

PART ONE'S monologues are glued together with other elements, notably Anita Smith's and David Bryant's opening dance, "A Child is Born" and Anita Smith's solo song, "Black Butterfly," both of which establish a solid black foundation for the black and white material to come. The gospel music in part one, sung by black and white singers, worked less well for me, partly because the singing was not strong, partly because it was not clear to me what the white singer's presence was meant to convey.

Part two, LeRoi Jones Dutchman, is a whole different kettle of fish. Jones' sinister, explosive play documents an anxiety dream. Surely every subway commuter has a hidden dread of trouble on the train. You know, some junkie or rapist getting on and taking hostages. Jones' anxiety dream is distinctively black. In this anxiety dream, a demented white siren (Raean Miller as Lula) manipulates a respectable young black commuter (Pressley Giles as Clay) into revealing his buried rage and hatred for white people, and as you might well suspect, worse remains behind.

Director Pamela Murphy achieves a tidy, taut production of Dutchman; Raean Miller's Lula is dangerous, seductive, and entirely convincing, while Pressley Giles handles well the broad range of emotion his character requires. Marlie Avant's subway set and Charles Murphy's sound effects serve this production very well. All by itself, Dutchman is worth your trip to the SRO Theater.

The program notes explain that An Evening in Black and White is a response to a complaint that "there were very few opportunities for black actors on the Peninsula." Why are there so few opportunities for black actors on this peninsula? As one theater professional in the audience pointed out, these talented performers could be profitably cast in many a show that does not call specifically for black characters. I agree that SRO's Evening in Black and White is a good idea, but I hope we won't have to wait for another such evening to see the black actors in this cast on stage again.

Community band rehearses weekly

Interested musicians, young and old, are invited to join the Monterey Community Band. The band rehearses from 7:15 to 9:30 p.m. Mondays in the Monterey High School band room.

Dick Robins serves as conductor and the City of Monterey Recreation and Community Services Department acts as sponsor.

Auditions are not necessary. Those interested must be able to read music and to provide their own instrument and music stand. Admission is free.

ON STAGE

An Evening in Black and White

An Evening in Black and White, a show incorporating songs, monologues, dance and a one-act play, continues in the Monterey Peninsula College S.R.O. Theater. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Sept. 22-24.

Director Pamela Murphy calls An Evening in Black and White "...an exciting adventure requiring performers, designers, director, choreographer and Gospel singers to work together in creating an original show."

Strong language and honest anger are incorporated into Dutchman, a one-act play by LeRoi Jones (Imamu Amiri Baraka) written in the black protest years of the 1960s. It illuminates problems that linger 20 years after it was written.

Choreography for An Evening in Black and White is by David Bryant. Marlie Avant designed the set, Lit Schultz designed the lights and Tisa Fleming is the costumer.

Cast members are Victoria Johnson, David Bryant, Pressley Giles, Raean Miller, James Levasseur, Felix Sola, Anita Smith, Karen Lehman Langston Johnson, Betty Dayton, Inez Lilly, Joy Bartlett, Persay Brant, Jessica Roach, Rachael McDonald and Emily Bertran.

Admission to the SRO is $4 general and $2 for MPC season ticket holders. For reservations, call 649-5561.

All for One — The Story of The Three Musketeers; One for All, or, Milday's Revenge — The Story of the Four Musketeers

GroveMont Theater Outreach stages the world premiere of an original, two-part adaptation of Alexander Dumas' classic swashbuckler. The author's stories of D'Artagnan, Athos, Aramis and Porthos have been adapted by local playwright Dan Gotch, who has created two separate but connecting plays which together relate the spirit of the Dumas novel.

Stephen Moorer directs both productions, titled All for One ... the Story of the Three Musketeers, and One for All, or Milady's Revenge ... The Story of the Four Musketeers.

All for One plays at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Sept. 22-24, at Carmel's Outdoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita. Prior to each performance, there will be a one-hour, pre-show "festival" with magician Roy Slater and juggler Chris Heimer. Food, drink and souvenirs will also be available.

Tickets to All for One are $8 general; $6 for students, the military and senior citizens 65 and over; and $5 for children 12 and under and GroveMont season ticket holders.

Previews of One for All, or Milady's Revenge ... The Story of the Four Musketeers, will take place at 8 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, Sept. 26-28, with pre-show entertainments to begin at 7. Admission to the preview is $5. One for All officially opens Thursday, Sept. 29.

For more information or reservations, call 649-5561 or 649-6852.

Uncommon Women and Others

GroveMont Theater's 1988 Festival of Women's Plays features Wendy Wasserstein's comedy, Uncommon Women and Others. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Sept. 22-24, at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center, 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in New Monterey.

Directed by Sid Cato, Uncommon Women and Others is a play which delves into the lives of a group of graduates from Mount Holyoke. Flashbacks to their former days provide humor and insight into the womens' past and future lives. The cast includes Nikki McKee, Sandy Williams, Denise Clifford, Sandy Sidener, Ivy Cates, Cathy Sparr, Mona Hyre, Suzanne Crain and Laurie deGonzalez.

General admission is $8 on Thursdays and Sundays and $9.50 on Fridays and Saturdays. Students, seniors and the military are $7 on Thursdays and Sundays, $8.50 on Fridays and Saturdays. For reservations, call 649-6852. For advance tickets, call 649-5561.

The Early Girl

The GroveMont Theater's 1988 Festival of Women's Plays continues with Carolyn Kava's comedic drama, The Early Girl. The play is staged at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center, located at 320 Hoffman at Lighthouse in New Monterey.

Directed by Geha Gonthier, The Early Girl is a perceptive and sometimes funny play about making choices. The story delves into the lives of a group of "working girls" and the modern brothel in which they work. Appearing in the production are Denise Clifford, Kim Candler, Starr Cruz, Tina Plascentia, Nidhi Rice and Geha Gonthier.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Sept. 29-Oct. 1.

Advance tickets are available through Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561. For reservations, call GroveMont at 649-6852.

General admission is $8 on Thursdays and Sundays, $9.50 on Fridays and Saturdays. Students, seniors and military are $7 on Thursdays and Sundays, $8.50 on Fridays and Saturdays.

Actors in the Adobes

The historic buildings of Monterey provide the setting for a series of short dramatic performances presented by GroveMont Theater Outreach. "Actors in the Adobes" is comprised of short dramas set in the years 1832-1852. Performances are set in Colton Hall, Pacific and Madison; Cooper-Molera Adobe, Polk and Munras, and at the Custom House located near Fisherman's Wharf, all in Monterey.

Show times are as follows: for Saturday, Sept. 24 — Walter Colton and Robert Semple will be presented at 11 a.m. in Colton Hall and at noon in the Cooper-Molera adobe.

Encarnacion Cooper and Thomas Larkin will be staged at noon in the Custom House and at 11 a.m. in the Cooper-Molera adobe.

For additional information, call 649-6852.

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde

Robert Louis Stevenson's classic story about the dual natures of man can be viewed at the oldest theater in the state, California's First Theater.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through September at the historic theater, located at Scott and Pacific streets in Monterey.

Tickets are $6 for adults, $5 for seniors and teens and $4 for children 12 and younger. For information, call 375-4916.

Wealth of courses offered in Monterey

An array of fall/winter recreational activities, of interest to the entire family, has been organized by the City of Monterey Recreation and Community Services Department.

There are more than 100 selections to choose from ranging from arts and crafts and cooking classes to dance classes, gymnastics, music and drama classes, after-school playground programs, tot classes, sports activities and a number of other opportunities.

Adults and seniors will also find program offerings and classes larger in scope and in tune with the season.

Classes are scheduled to begin during the week of Oct. 3-7. Monterey city residents registration began Sept 12. Non-residents and late Monterey residents registration begins Monday, Sept. 19.

Copies of the Fall/Winter Activities Guide can be picked up at the department's administrative office, 546 Dutra St., and at other Monterey City recreation facilities.

Friends of Jung launch several get-togethers

"POTLUCK and Potpourri" is the title of the activity launching the fall program of the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung on Friday, Sept. 23. It begins at 6:30 p.m. at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel.

Highlight of the evening will be a showing of The Power of Myth by Joseph Campbell and Bill Moyers, with a guest panel to help spark audience responses. Heading the panel is former U.S. Senater (Alaska) Mike Gravel. The group's announcement quotes Campbell: "The images of myth are reflections of the spiritual potentialities of every one of us. Through contemplating these, we evoke their power in our own lives."

Then it states that, even without Campbell's many references to Jung's ideas, his commentaries and illustrations can give all of us practical ways of making our inward search and outward journey more creatively conscious. The agenda for the evening, after the potluck, includes a videotape showing of some 60 minutes, followed by brief individual comments by panelists, and then questions and reactions of the audience.

The public is invited to this and all other activities of the Friends of C.G. Jung. The group is an informal one, and is composed of people who share an enthusiasm for the noted Swiss psychologist's philosophy and ideas. Aside from the usual "Friday" activities, the group is now sponsoring weekday and weekend small-group meetings on a variety of topics dealing with the issues confronting people in today's world.

Prior registrations are not necessary; donations are requested.

Numerologist speaks at Portofino

The Monday Evening Psychic Lecture Series presents Sharon Lee Dalkey at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 26 at Portofino Cafe in Pacific Grove. Dalkey, a numerologist and speech therapist, will speak on "Numbers in Your Life."

Focusing on numerology as a tool for self-understanding and personal growth, Dalkey will talk about the symbolic meaning of numbers and how the numbers in your life can help you learn about life's purpose and your own truth.

Dalkey was born and raised in San Jose and has a master's degree from San Jose State University in speech and speech pathology, and works as a program specialist for Special Education through the Monterey County Office of Education. She has been a resident of the Monterey Peninsula since 1971.

Dalkey has been studying metaphysics for more than 15 years and has her own business, "Guides of Discovery" which includes her work with numerology, tarot, and transpersonal counselling. She sees auras and energy fields, and her greatest intuitive gift is a sense of "knowing." With a focus on spirit, Dalkey views troubling events in life not as tragedy or trauma, but as an opportunity for the soul's growth.

There is a $4 charge for the lecture and further information can be obtained by calling 373-7379 or 647-8269.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

Swords in the forest

THE GROVEMONT Theater Outreach project has undertaken a month of plays, concerts, poetry, music, comic opera, and even a masked ball. This mostly takes place at the Outdoor Forest Theater and ostensibly celebrates the reign of France's Louis XIII, I think. No matter. The real emphasis is on those timeless characters — Les Trois Mosquetaires — that have fascinated us (mostly in our youth) for generations.

When I went to the performance, I half expected a juvenile romp that would dwell on the youthful camaraderie of the trio. It was soon evident that the treachery, infidelities, religious war and intrigues made it suitable adult fare.

The opening play in the series is called All for One — The Story of the Three Musketeers. (The sequel is titled One for All — or Milady's Revenge. It plays in repertory with All for One.)

The plot is complex but basically it involves the young D'Artagnan who comes to the city to become a musketeer. He falls in with the infamous trio by insulting them and almost having to fight each one in a duel. But Porthos, Athos, and Aramis admire the kid's spunk and they take him under their wing.

In the meantime, Louis XIII and Cardinal Richelieu are waging a cold war between themselves and Queen Anne finds herself caught in the middle. Count DeRochefort and Milady Dewinter are conspirators who swell the progress of the cabal. The balance of the play involves the gallant three rescuing the Queen's "honor" which means covering up her liaison with the Duke of Buckingham. You get the idea.

Dan Gotch adapted these plays from the original Dumas novel. Stephen Moorer directs this play very well, keeps it moving, and does some novel things. There are many ways this could have gone wrong. As it is, I think it works well except that the first act is a tad too long. A few of the scenes should have been reduced to a few lines; they could have been evoked instead of enacted. But other than that, the action flows well; the actors know how to use the open space and project their voices well; the timing is complex but comes together nicely. In short, this is an excellent production of material you may not have thought you would be interested in. Serendipity.

SPACE PROHIBITS me from singling out all the actors that deserve mention but the following stood out as exceptional: David Miller as Aramis — the musketeer who contemplates the priesthood, the swashbuckler with a soul; Norman Stottmeister as D'Artagnan — the upstart who knows no fear; Kevin Hanstick as Count DeRochefort — an engaging schemer; Jim Webber as the Duke of Buckingham — tender paramour to a queen.

Queen Anne is played excellently by Eleanor Wylde who brings a regal grace to the role. The king is played by Valerio Biondo who captures the legendary quirkiness of Louis XIII. (It is amusing that the king is also stage carpenter for the production.)

Richelieu is played ably by bareheaded Stephen Canepa. By not wearing the Cardinal's biretta (a godly crown, if you will) to reinforce his image of considerable power in the court, we are forced to compensate when we see him on the stage by reminding ourselves of his greater than obvious rank. I suggest that Lady Ramirez provide him one right away.

Richelieu's missing cap is the only flaw I can find with the costuming. The outfits are so rich that we are immediately drawn into the era. Costumes are all important in a "costumer" and they are done excellently here. The same is true of the sets. Marlie Avant's renditions of Steve Judge's designs are stunning. Large, well-rendered landscape canvases and intricate interiors keep our eyes from getting bored. The queen's chambers have a depth rarely seen in a stage setting.

Mark Shuler's choreography of the first scenes is convincing and exciting. Ross Brown's lighting keeps us focused on the action throughout the play.

There is a novel comic touch to the play that I found very effective. When scenes are changed, members of the King's guard double as prop handlers. Rather than trying to sneak about in the dark bumping into things, the lights are left dim and the actors stay in character tossing jibes, telling jokes, playing tricks. This inventive touch brings alive something that otherwise can be an awkward process.

Alexander Dumas (the elder) also gave us The Count of Monte Cristo, The Black Tulip, The Corsican Brothers, and about 300 volumes in his career. He unabashedly used a "factory" of researchers to comb through the memoirs of adventurers and explorers for material he could use in his novels and plays. Dan and Steve need not fear for festival material if they stay with Dumas in years to come.

The play schedule for the Carmel Play Festival is very complex and too long to include here. There is something happening every night through October 9th. There are performances of the Musketeer plays on the weekends generally at 8 p.m. See the published schedule or call the theater at 649-6852 or Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

DAVID MILLER portrays Aramis in the tales of both the Three and Four Musketeers. Dan Gotch adapted Dumas' stories for the GroveMont stagings presented at Carmel's Outdoor Forest Theater.

Cultural council awarded sum

The State/Local Partnership Program of the California Arts Council has awarded the Monterey County Cultural Council a total of $16,824 for the 1988/89 fiscal year.

The State/Local Partnership Program grants include a Level I and a Level II grant available on a competitive basis to the sixty State/Local Partners of the California Arts Council. The State/Local Partners are nonprofit organizations designated by their county Board of Supervisors as the arts planning agencies in their areas. Each county and a few highly populated cities have a State/Local Partner, which also acts as the local link to the California Arts Council.

The California Arts Council (CAC) distributes state funding to arts organizations and artists; and with state funds being low, competition for CAC funding is high.

In the State/Local Partnership Program, a maximum of $15,000 per State/Local Partner was available from Level I Grants for 1988/89 funding. The Monterey County Cultural Council was awarded a full $15,000 Level I Grant to be used in part towards the executive director's salary and expenses for a fundraising brochure.

This year, for the first time, the Monterey County Cultural Council received funding from the very competitive State/Local Partnership Level II Grant.

A total of $1,824 was awarded in support of production costs for MCCC's new newsletter ART WORKS, edited by Executive Director Linda Bellon-Fisher. Bellon-Fisher was formerly managing editor of The Friends of Photography's re:view and a contributing editor to the Westcoast publication Artweek. She said, "The State/Local Partnership Program rated the proposal very good, and the first issue was produced in mid-July."

ART WORKS, a bimonthly publication, contains articles on Monterey county cultural events, organizations and artists, as well as a calendar listing of events.

BAY LIGHTS

By Ray Mungo

Locals' gathering spot

'DON'T RAVE about this place or we'll never be able to get in again without waiting," said Carmel Highlands' Nancy Mayer as she raved about the crab in puff pastry at Fifi's Cafe, Deli and Bakery, 1188 Forest Ave. in PG last week.

OK, we'll try to be calm but of course Bay Lights is burdened with the heavy responsibility of letting you know when we find a place where the food is terrific and the price a bargain. Fifi's certainly meets both standards, as its steady clientele of locals will attest.

We opened with a vrai French country pate and three kinds of soup—French onion, vegetable puree, and minestrone—for ourselves, Nancy, and MPC business prof Robert Yamaguchi to taste. The wonderful pate came with red onion and beefsteak tomatoes while the hot soups elicited uniform cries of delight. "It's an unusual minestrone with more peas than I've ever seen, and lightly seasoned," quoth the Nancoise Experience.

The spinach salad which followed featured the perfect garlic crouton, ending our 20-year search for same. This is the crouton that swallowed Cleveland, huge (but light), plumply adorning the fresh spinach and thick bacon.

Two entrees shared three ways left us delirious. The chicken breast with pasta, mushrooms, tomato and broccoli was tender and delicious, but the highest praise went to the crab in puff pastry with green leaf lettuce and herbal rice. Chef Phillipe Tardivet, co-owner of Fifi's with wife Michele, perfected his pastry technique in France and we've never tasted better outside of Provence.

Throwing diets aside, we went for the custard Napoleon with layered, delicate crust and the lemon cheesecake, and all cheered the chef as he emerged smiling from the kitchen, wearing an incongruous T-shirt reading "So Italian. So Intense." We complimented him on the meal and Fifi's extended hours, open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mon.-Sat. and Sundays for brunch.

"Yes, we're doing well because we have the local people coming back again and again," Tardivet said. "Now you have three more," Nancy replied.

THIS LARGE lunch came to under $30 for our group, with small boxes of scrumptious leftovers to take home. On our way out, we couldn't resist the bakery counter and got country light wheat bread for $1.75 and a sweet baguette for $1. Note that Fifi's has an early-bird dinner special Mon.-Thurs. from 5:30 to 7 p.m. with entree, soup or salad, and a glass of Rene Junot French wine for $9.25 per, plus sandwiches to go and an intimate back room where, it's rumored, legendary artist and Pine Cone columnist Sam Colburn sometimes leads a lunch club salon...

FAMOUS FOOD writer and hostess Martha Stewart will speak at the Steinbeck Forum of the Monterey Conference Center at 1 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 2, followed by reception and tea. Tickets at $20 are still available for this event, part of the sensational Tablescapes exhibit at the Monterey Sheraton, where author Stewart will autograph her best sellers after tea from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. You can mail a check payable to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula to Martha Stewart Lecture, 492 Clay St., Monterey 93940, or phone 649-3888 or 372-6668 for info...

Tablescapes officially opens Fri., Sept. 30 with a black tie gala preview from 6-8 p.m. in the Serra Grand Ballroom of the conference center. Champagne, supper hors d'oeurvre and dessert are included in the $50 tab. Same address, phones, and great beneficiary, and we'll see you there if we can find a black tie. "Use a magic marker," laughed Lee Early...

KIM CHI: With the Seoul Olympics on, thoughts turn naturally to Korean food, typically generous with red pepper, ginger, sesame, garlic and onion, and often served with the ubiquitous kim chi (pickled-cabbage) relish on the side. We're looking for a good Korean restaurant around here if you know of one...

Hey, we all make mistakes and two weeks ago Bay Lights made a whopper when we misidentified Naomi Marcus as chef/owner of the Scrumptiously Yours catering firm. It's actually run by Anina Marcus of Carmel Highlands, Naomi's sister (624-6323). Naomi's in SF writing for Mother Jones magazine...

THE CAPTIVE American by Lee Brandenburg (Hampton Books, $13.95) is out in the heat of the presidential race. The author, a wealthy philanthropist from Silicon Valley with a Pebble Beach residence, argues persuasively that we're all being "had" by professional politicians and that things will improve when ordinary citizens get more active in government. Half of those eligible don't even vote and Brandenburg cites an astonishing "98 per cent incumbency rate among Lifetime Politicians." After feting at the Thunderbird in the Barnyard, he left for media appearances in DC, NYC, and Beantown...

In further news of the book world, the Oxford English Dictionary is now available on computer disk. Don't laugh, it took 120 professional typists more than a year and half to enter all 12 volumes of the OED and this is an event the libraries and computer types have been waiting for. It's only $950 for the software and $700 for the "disk reader" you need...

Paintings by the late Thad Leland exhibited

Paintings and drawings by the late Thad Emory Leland will be shown at the Dooley Gallery through Oct. 8.

The paintings by this Carmel artist reflect the breadth of his travels, particularly of his 15 years spent in Peru.

Leland has exhibited in many galleries in the United States as well as the British and American Cultural Institute in Peru. An excellent craftsman and very knowledgable in the media he employs both in his paintings and drawings, his works include oils, watercolors, acrylics and pastels.

This exhibit includes portraits and landscapes revealing the jungle growth of the Peruvian scene. Drawings and watercolors show the life of that South American country. His fascination with horses is depicted in his many scenes of horse racing at Bay Meadows and the Polo Games at Pebble Beach.

Leland studied at the Cranbrook Academy of Art. He received his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Michigan and a master of arts degree from Stanford University.

The opening reception is scheduled 7 to 9 p.m., Sept. 24.

The gallery is located on San Carlos Street in Carmel, between Fifth and Sixth avenues through "The Mall."

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Memories of MJF 1988

(Note: Late jazz critic Ralph Gleason was the best. What follows means to honor Ralph by employing the impressionistic approach he used in covering Monterey Jazz Festival for so many years.)

THE OBSERVABLE light that binds jazz generations. Great affection on the faces of piano master Hank Jones and young guitarist Emily Remler as they meet between respective sets and discuss the mix on an album they did together. She walks onstage again. Hank: "Emily writes too, you know. Excellent composer."

Richie Cole's courage. An accident sent his right hand through a shut window. Bandage applied at once. Literally seconds later and despite obvious pain, he's playing at top speed for the arena crowd. Remarkable: his lush, Bostic-like reading on If Ever I Should Leave You.

The dignity of octogenarian genius Benny Carter. Guesting with the Bill Berry Big Band, he arrives early, chats with well-wishers, asks but one question: "Where's my horn?"

Bobby Hutcherson's amusement while deciphering instructions on a video camera he'd just bought in Japan.

The utter lack of competitive tension between High School All-Star percussionists Darrin Thomas (Seaside High) and Dan Kassis (just getting started at Cal State Northridge) as they studied a chart together during rehearsal.

Jimmy Lyons in private conversation about the recently deceased Hal Hallett (first fest president): "I can never thank him enough. He won the business community's support and let me do my thing. He really got it going. Wonderful guy."

The genuine warmth with which Clark Terry greeted press corps members whom he hadn't seen since last year.

All kinds of hair styles along the fairgrounds pathways — punker spikes, neo-hippie, conservative business cuts, cornrow splendor.

Diane Reeves: striking as any fashion model in her willowy, billowing outfit. She moves the set from electric eclectic — Latin crossover, in the main — to a Down Home call-and-response with the arena throng.

When Billy Higgins, Curtis Fuller and Cedar Walton drew spontaneous applause just by walking through backstage doors.

Jazz photographer Will Wallace shooting Remler as Emily truly listens to other players. She wore the music on her face like a bright veil.

Canadian pianist Oliver Jones remarking that his teacher in Montreal (Oscar Peterson's sister Daisy) now enjoys her 45th year as a private instructor.

Flower faces of babes in arms. Tiny ones soaking up the jazz.

Stage manager Paul Vieregge: sees everything while seeming simply to stroll about. Has had the same job since fest number one. Other staffers keeping their cool under pressure: Jan Plunkett, David Murray, Stella LePine, Paul Fingerote.

The hot percussionists who put Japan's Swing Twilight Big Band into fourth gear on a Latin thing. Jazz buff yelling "Go, girl" at the petite marimba soloist in pink show outfit. She smiles.

Outstanding: John Cortes with a baritone sax ballad (to wife Luisa on their 10th anniversary) — flugelhornist Stacy Rowles beats back the flu bug and plays tough and pretty for soulful New Orleans march textures by the Jazz Birds — reedman Curtis Peagler on urban blues of the Cheathams (check out his new solo album (from the Pablo label) — ever-thoughtful bassist Rob Fischer with the Cal Tjader alumni unit.

The man on bongos rapping down why strollers should buy his sweet potato pies. Righteous hot links, red beans and rice served up at their booth by the folks from Ferdi's.

The arc of wild onstage humor between pianist Tee Carson and extraordinary Mel Brown.

Queen Ida and Katie Webster at the Blues Afternoon. Inner shine. As opposed to nervous energy.

Joe Williams gagging it up when he was given a birthday cake (70 candles) during Saturday's press brunch. 'I'm only 40."

Young monsters. Guitarist John T. Smith and pianist Kito Gamble of Berkeley High (Best Student Combo for '88). Kito's the daughter of jazz vocalist Faye Carol.

J.J. Johnson watching Sunday pro football on the backstage TV while he warms up his trombone.

The power and joy of Diane Schuur. These came through everything she sang.

CLINT EASTWOOD faces the gathered newshounds tomorrow (9/23) at Manhattan's Lincoln Center. This press conference has been slated as a reasonable prelude — New York Film Festival will screen his filmic biography of Bird Parker on Monday (9/26).

Meanwhile, Bird will open in New York and Los Angeles on Sept. 30. Then "selected cities" will get the major title Oct. 14.

Semantics at work: Kansas City (Bird's birthplace and early home) claims the official domestic premiere on Oct. 9. Drum master Max Roach worked with Bird and promises to be on hand for the suburban event. Dexter Gordon too.

(Dexter, of course, pulled down an Oscar nomination for his portrayal of a troubled tenorman in the Round Midnight flick. It's no secet that Clint urged Warner Brothers to back that project. French Director Tavernier thanked Carmel's former mayor via an ad in trade journals.)

Organizers of the Kansas City bash say they can't reveal whether Clint Eastwood will show up — "he wants to focus on his star." Forest Whitaker's characterization of Bird won Best Actor honors at Cannes. Filmland writers already are predicting serious Oscar contention for both Whitaker and Clint's work as producer-director.

National columnist Jeannie Williams claims that Clint's not on the insider guest list at Kansas City. Hometown pals say he has eyes for an African safari in the near future.

Johnny Adams of KRML Jazz Radio quotes Columbia's Gene Armand as saying the Bird soundtrack album now has hit 100,000 copies sold in France alone.

And Clint Eastwood may have fathered a trend. George Benson reports that he will star in a film bio of Wes Montgomery. Working title: Boss Guitar.

THE NAME'S Spanish. Her blood line's Catalonian. And jazz vocalist Carol Bach-y-Rita has shut her Oakland apartment. In about a week, she'll return to Europe.

Paris. City of Lights. "I was just there and am going back to jobs in five different jazz spots," Carol said on break at the Monterey Bay Club. "There's work. The musicians impress — many Americans and good French players. I'll be there at least a year. Maybe two. This Monterey gig's the last one before I head over."

MBC manager Teri Waros heard Carol at Harry's in San Francisco. Miss Bach-y-Rita worked here with piano only (Albert Sarko). Even without bass lines to ride, she swung prettily. Smoky young sound. The intelligence in her face came out as architecture — set assembly that was unusually fresh. (Example: from a Jobim ballad, sung in his native speech, right into Sister Sadie by Horace Silver and Eddie Jefferson.)

Carol worked Monterey Jazz Festival last year and in 1986 too. She's a 5/86 Cal Berkeley grad (political economy of industrial societies). "My inspirations? Ella and Eddie. Ernestine. Lambert, Hendricks and Ross. Dinah."

She's trilingual — Spanish, Portuguese, English. Her first cassette has Mark Levine on piano, drummer Vince Lateano, bassist Neal Heidler. Title: Do Something. One senses that she'll be just fine as Parisian jazz buffs pick up on what she does.

At Monterey Bay Club: Higher Feelings (9/22) — Broadway Band (9/23-24) — master bassist David Friesen with John Stowell on guitar (9/27) — Jan Deneau (9/28).

NOTEBOOK CHUNKS:

• Dave Brubeck's group — son Chris on electric bass and trombone, Bill Smith with clarinet, drummer Randy Jones — will join Monterey County Symphony on Saturday night (9/24) at Sherwood Hall in Salinas. Thus the opening of the first annual Pop Concert Season. (George Shearing has been booked for April '89.)

On tap Saturday: symphony-sized arrangements of Brubeck jazz compositions. Dave's conductor — Russell Gloyd — will accept the baton from Clark Suttle and oversee the program's back half. That's where the famed quartet comes in. Ticketing and other info: 624-8511.

• Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz offers the brilliant South African pianist Abdullah Ibrahim (formerly Dollar Brand) on Monday night (9/26). It's $12 per; sets at 7:30 and 9:30. Good food. Minors welcome. Coming 9/30 — Bay Area Jazz Composer's Orchestra.

• Editor David Zych of the national Jazz Times says my essay on "the next major development in jazz" has been scheduled for October's issue. Thanks. Some of the conclusions emerged out of doing this column each week.

• Don't forget guitarist Jeff Linsky plus Kenny Stahl on flute at Jimmy's American Bandstand in Carmel Rancho Center. Sunday night (9/25) at eight.

• Jazz photographer Will Wallace's show at Portofino Coffee House (in Pacific Grove Plaza) shares superb portraits. Among my favorites: Flora Purim and Bobby McFerrin (backstage at MJF), Mark Murphy, Rufus Reid with acoustic bass, Bobby Hutcherson (both pensive and amused as though he had a pretty secret). Through month's end.

• The extraordinary jazz vocalist Kitty Margolis will work with Smith Dobson Trio on Sunday night (9/25) in San Jose's Garden City Club. At 360 Saratoga and 1-244-4443.

• The Catalyst in Santa Cruz has Buckwheat Zydeco coming in on Saturday night (9/24). Door charge of $7.50.

• Palo Alto Jazz Festival on Sunday (9/25) at the Baylands. Carmen McRae, Pete Escovedo Band, Randy Brecker, Yellowjackets, Tuck and Patti, others. Ticket info: (415) 329-2623 or (415) 324-3121.

• Wynton Marsalis in concert (plus hosted reception) at Saratoga's Paul Masson Winery. Kicks off at six o'clock Saturday evening (9/24) as a benefit for United Negro College Fund. Call (415) 839-8387.

• Plan ahead perhaps. San Francisco Opera will sponsor Dance Theater of Harlem's 1989 Bay Area run — May 17-20 and again May 25. Jazz scoring's a major element wherever this unit appears.

• At Kimball's in San Francisco — George Robert-Tom Harrell Quintet (9/23-24). On 9/30 comes Mark Murphy.

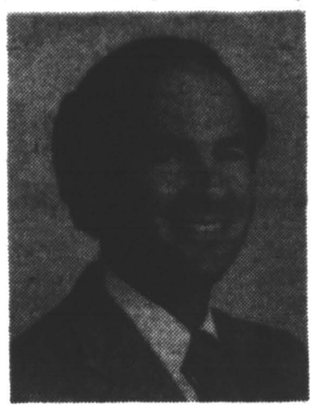
"THE GATEHOUSE" INN



A renowned home filled with history "The Gatehouse" could very well be the last opportunity for you to develop a Bed and Breakfast Inn in Pacific Grove on the Monterey Bay. Originally the home of Senator Langford, this Italiante-style Victorian with ocean views throughout was constructed in 1884. The recently acquired permits enable the owner of the Senator Langford house to convert the Victorian and add a small replica of the home on the property. The completed inn will include 8 guest rooms (some with fireplaces), a sunny cozy sitting room with stone fireplace, a formal dining room, a kitchen/breakfast room plus a complete manager's quarters and office. This home has fabulous ocean views throughout, hardwood floors, and 10-foot ceilings on the ground level. Parking will be provided on the property for at least 8 cars, and there is space available to create a charming courtyard garden adjacent to the buildings. Invest in "The Gatehouse" Inn. Exclusive agency listing. Coldwell Banker Real Estate.

A VARIETY OF VIEWS

Hacienda Carmel — A two bedroom, 1 bath unit in one of Carmel's finest Adult communities. There is a lovely patio off the living room which has extra built in cabinets. Hacienda Carmel offers many amenities — Swimming pool, beautiful party house, infirmary on site, guest quarters and putting green just to name a few. $140.000.

Carmel Point — We offer the least expensive house on lovely Carmel Point. A short level walk leads to the Ocean. You can look to the hills from the sunny deck and garden. A guest house is snuggled behind the flowers. The morning room is ideal for morning coffee. 2 bedrooms, 2 baths. $395,000.

Carmel Highlands — The pine forest, the magnificent ocean sights, the colorful sunsets, all lend a romantic aura to the balcony of this fairy tale home. In truth, the whole property speaks of romance...massive stone, clear heart redwood, beveled glass, hand finished hardwood floors, gracious gardens all enhance the cozy intimate charm of the two-bedroom main residence. Your guests will also fall under the romantic spell while in their own private stone cottage. They will be warmed by their own stone fireplace, be fascinated by the lovely gabled ceilings and delighted with the view from their romantic window seat. Do you need a little romance in your soul? It's waiting for you...$1, 319,000.

The Playhouse

The house is long (about 60 feet) and low (apparently one story but there's a surprise), and it fits comfortably on a large wooded lot. It's situated a little below street level, and the drive leads down to a double carport. It's a very private dwelling, circled on all sides by fences and endowed with generous decks front and back.

You enter across the front deck and see for the first time that most of the walls are floor to ceiling windows. The general color scheme is white — combed plywood and painted walls, beamed and planked ceilings — a splendid setting for color accents supplied by furniture, carpets, drapes and paintings.

The living room is 18x28, glass on both sides overlooking decks and a spa at the rear, shelves at the near end and along one wall, and a large free-standing fireplace at the far end.

The bedroom hallway opens at the far end, and off it are 3 bedrooms, all spacious, all with lots of windows, shelves, cabinets and closets. The master bedroom is 19x14, carpeted, with a wall of louvred closets, built-in mirrors and, of course, a large private bath. A second bath serves the other bedrooms and guests.

The kitchen and well-lighted dining room are at the opposite or near end of the house. The dining room is sizeable, beamed, and opens directly to the kitchen. This is 17½ feet long and 9½ feet wide, has all appliances in place, multiple cabinets, and directional spot lighting. Even a small service bar.

Oh, the surprise! The lot slopes off at the west end and provides space for a 600 sq. ft. guest quarters on a lower level. This is a totally private space with one bedroom and its own bath, a comfortable accommodation for visitors.

The house is a complete world in itself, over 1700 sq. ft. But toward the south, across the rear deck and a small forest of Monterey Pines, you can see the peaks of the Santa Lucia Mountains.

Why do we call this "The Playhouse"? This is a highly versatile home. The smaller bedrooms can easily double as dens, game rooms, TV rooms, whatever best suits your family's needs. It's located at 25233 Ward Place, a long cul-de-sac east of Highway 1 but not on Hatton Canyon. The price — $390,000.

CARMEL LEGENDS

No. 85

We have lately (and temporarily) come into possession of a copy of the TELEPHONE DIRECTORY for Monterey and San Benito Counties dated February, 1930. It's a little larger than a Reader's Digest, a bit tattered, stained in places by wine and tomato sauce, and runs to about 100 pages. The Carmel section is 7 pages and lists numbers like 352-W, 44 and 2-J-5. Fairy Lee Byrd, for example, is 841, the Fire Department is 100, and Miss Eliza Clevenger is 1-J-3. Robinson Jeffers is not listed because he didn't believe in telephones. Edward Weston (782) and Hazel Watrous (361) did. The yellow pages are not yellow at all, run to 51 indexed pages and are called "Buyer's guide." 94 restaurants are listed (9 in Carmel), and only 1 of the Carmel restaurants survives today. There were 42 physicians in 1930, more like 242 today. Real estate offices (may their tribe decrease) add up to 77, of which 3 are still extant in some form; but remember, this covers 2 counties. There were 82 hotels (some duplication), no motels. Ice business was big: 9 outlets. Travelling through this list of 57 years ago is fascinating...and more than slightly disconcerting. Do you suppose that somebody in the year 2044 will be equally enchanted with our telephone book?

CARMEL

AS THOUGH A QUEEN IN COURT, the surrounding homes defer to this stately landmark property. Sited within an estate in excess of four ordinary Carmel-sized lots, White House is as sturdy as a ship's keel and as timeless as the surrounding oaks. Recently remodeled, the rugged hand hewn redwood siding now coexists with Gaggenau appliances and Karistan carpet. The simplicity of the original plank floors is now accentuated with granite and marble in the kitchen and baths. Hinges and locks from London, England. TV projection room surround-sound from Dolby. Garden lighting and an alarm system throughout for security. Electric gates and fully fenced for privacy. A separate cottage for guests or staff. Although a showcase residence, this is really one of Carmel's most well-designed yet most practical three bedroom family homes. A prestigious property at only $795,000.

PRICE REDUCTION! South of Ocean Avenue, this home has been completely rebuilt and remodeled inside. Only three short blocks to either the beach or town. This home features top-of-the-line fixtures and appliances; there is also a large family room with wet bar, a convertible den/3rd bedroom, a sunny patio with swimming pool and decks, and a security system. A natural home for the weekender, full time resident, and for those who love to entertain. Two bedrooms, three baths, gated off-street parking, and South of Ocean Avenue. JUST REDUCED to $599,500.

CARMEL SUNSETS! Watch the sunset over Point Lobos, from decking that extends across one side of this beautiful, large family home. Upgrades of marble, skylights, and a fabulous master bath. This residence includes 5 bedrooms, 3½ baths, and double car garage. $450,000.

A GATED ENTRANCE LEADS you into a distinctive property, echoing gracious living. There are green mature gardens drawing you towards a home with a "New Orleans Flavor." Open the antique glass entry door into brilliant sunlight, as this home faces south. The brand new gourmet kitchen is the "heart of the home." The dining room and living room, each with patios leading outdoors, branch out from the kitchen. Floor to ceiling windows call your attention to spectacular views of Coastal mountains and forests. The master suite includes two baths, bedroom and charming private sitting room with fireplace. In addition, there is a 1 bedroom apt. with sitting room and laundry. This home has excitement and remains a secluded property yet close to all conveniences. $595,000.
